MRS. MARSHALL LENDS SUPPORT

Wife of Vice President is Aiding Washington Egg Boycott.

FINAL ROUNDUP NEXT

Washington, Dec. 6.—Having obtained the support of Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall, wife of the vice president, Mrs. Robert M. LaFollette, Mrs. Albert B. Cummins, the wives of nearly all the cabinet officers and those of many senators and representatives, the egg boycott campaign will be brought to a close here today by local club women. The only other work that now remains to be done is the final round-up for signatures to the petition that will be presented to congress at an early date asking remedial legislation to prevent food monopolies. This petition, which Mrs Ella Logan, head of the movement here declares will bear more than 25,000 natives will be completed on Monday and will then be ready for presentation to congress along with similar petitions from Philadelphia, Chicago, Pittsburg, Kansas City and other large cities.

During the last week egg prices in Washington have decreased from sixty cents a dozen to fifty cents. Dealers declare the drop in price, while coincident with is not due to the boycott but to the increased supply and a lighter demand.

FUND PASSES $52,000 MARK

End of First Week in Hope Hospital Campaign Shows Good Results.

OVER ONE-THIRD OF TOTAL IS PLEDGED

Effort Will Go Forward With Renewed Vigor Next Week.

At the close of the first week in the public campaign for funds with which to erect a new building for Hope hospital announcement is made that more than one-third of the desired sum of $150,000 has been pledged, and by this evening, when the workers submit their reports for today, the total amount donated thus f will be in excess of $52,000.

Late this afternoon at a meeting of the executive committee in charge of the campaign, the results of the first week's canvass were announced as a subject for discussion, and among other things additional plans will be made for next week's campaign.

"Officials of the Hope Hospital association and all others interested in the work are delighted with the success achieved thus far," declared President J. B. Franke this afternoon. "The efforts of the canvassers has met with success and everybody is enthusiastic over the work.

"The end of the first week finds the workers better organized and with the advantage of their initial experiences as an aid they will start out next week with renewed energy, with the slogan, 'exceed last week's total.'"

Some New Donations.

Additional large donations reported today are as follows: Pidgeon Millinery company, $500; Elks' lodge, No. 155, $250; J. A. Thieme, $500, and Edward Heimke, $250. A donation of $100 was made by Summit City lodge No. 170, F. & A. M., and the Fort Wayne chapter of the American Insurance union pledges $25 to the building fund.

FIVE ARRESTS ON POSTAL CHARGES

Women Among Indiana Folk Gathered in Under Federal Indictments.

ALL FURNISH BONDS

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 6.—Five arrests on indictments returned by the federal grand jury were reported to the United States marshal's office here today. The indictments charge violation of the postal laws in each case. The arrests were made last night.

May Fudge, of Terre Haute, is charged with sending an obscene letter to Dot Brown, of the same city. She was released on $200 bond. Patrick McKinley, also of Terre Haute, charged with the same offense, also was released on $200 bond.

John F. Judy, said to be the most prominent man in Judyville, is alleged to have placed two typewritten letters inside a bundle of newspapers and paid for their delivery at the newspaper rate. His son is postmaster at Judyville. Judy furnished bond of $300.

Two farmers—Bert Fuller, of near Crawfordsville, and Charles E. Biser, of near Williamsport — were arrested charged with sending obscene postal cards through the mails. Each gave bond of $200.

The five, with a number of others, who have been arrested on federal warrants, will appear before Federal Judge Anderson here on Dec. 16 for arraignment.

DIGGING WAY THROUGH SNOW

Effort to Resume Delivery of Food Supplies and Coal in Denver.

THOUSANDS AT WORK

Denver, Col., Dec. 6.—Cloudless skies greeted residents of Denver and suburbs today as they resumed the task of digging their way through 45.5 inches of snow. The first efforts were to restore a partial street car service and resume the delivery of coal and food supplies.

While thousands of men worked with pick and shovel digging away the mass of snow and ice, the police endeavored to keep off the streets all vehicles except those needed to meet the city's immediate needs. Railroad traffic still was badly tied up, only one train from Cheyenne having reached the union station. No others were expected to be moved, either incoming or outgoing, after noon.

No information of actual life loss had been received at police headquarters.

MANY IMMIGRANTS COME.

Washington, Dec. 6.—There were admitted to the United States a total of 134,140 immigrant aliens in October this year, according to the immigration statistics just issued by the bureau of immigration of the department of labor. This is an increase of 25,840 over the same month last year, when 108,300 were admitted. The number admitted, however, was nearly double that of October, 1911, when 69,418 immigrant aliens entered this country. Of the number admitted last October 82,903 were males and 51,237 were females.

MOTHER WOULD WITNESS HANGING OF SON'S SLAYER.

Buffalo, Dec. 6.—Mrs. Frank Martin, of Warren, Pa., mother of George Gillespie, who was murdered last September by Giuseppe Di Giola, wants to attend the execution of Di Giola. In a letter to District Attorney Dudley she stated that she intends to attend if permission can be secured. Di Giola is now in a death cell in Auburn prison under sentence to be executed the week of January 4.

IN TREETOPS FOR 48 HOURS

Flood Refugees in Texas River Bottoms in Pitiable Plight.

COLD IS CAUSING GREAT SUFFERING

Rescue Work by Means of Frail Craft is Pushed Forward Rapidly.

Bryan, Texas, Dec. 6.—Cold weather last night caused intense suffering throughout the Brazos river bottoms, where hundreds of flood refugees—the majority negroes—have spent nearly 48 hours in trees. The flood's death list, which was placed at about fifty last night, had not been increased by the early morning reports.

More boats arrived in the bottoms today from the gulf coast, strengthening the fleet of hastily made frail craft used yesterday to pick flood victims out of trees.

The river today began falling in this section, giving promise that before night most of the urgent rescue work will be completed as far south as Navasota. Below there, however, is the crest which exceeds all previous Brazos rises by two or three feet. It has been impossible to get all the negroes to heed warnings and many of the white people refused to leave their property.

Thousands of cattle have perished in the flood. The greater part of this loss falls upon farmers with only small landholdings. The losses in ginned cotton have been heavy. In lots of 50 to 500 bales it has been swept away by floods at many points.

Don't Let This Happen

Home of J. Worthy Richman at midnight Christmas eve.

Mr. Richman—"Well, wifey, dear, have we gotten everything?"

Mrs. Richman—"I believe so. There's Johnny's drum, and his automobile and Aunt Mary's slippers and Mary's doll and her baby buggy, and there's your present and there's one the children gave me and—oh, won't they be happy in the morning when they see all the pretty things. It makes me feel like a child again. I hope every child in this big world has something for Christmas."

Mr. Richman—"I hope so too. Children so love Christmas. By jove, you know what? I haven't given one cent to the poor children. The first of the month I intended to give something and I kept putting it off day to day until it slipped my mind."

Mrs. Richman—"I wish you hadn't told me about it. It will rob our Christmas of one of its greatest joys."

To prevent this the subscription list at The Sentinel counting room for the poor children's fund is kept open all the time and presents will be purchased with the money that is donated and given to the children at a special free performance at the Empress theater on the afternoon before Christmas.

A big Christmas tree will be one of the features and it will be brilliantly illuminated as Hattersley & Sons and Frank Edmunds have consented to do all the wiring and furnish all the colored lights that may be needed for this purpose without charge.

Persons who contemplate giving ought to bear in mind that it will take a long time to visit the stores here and purchase the toys and other presents to be given and that by sending in their money as soon as possible there will be better stocks to select from and the distribution can be better arranged.

The list shows that there are a number of mighty charitable little girls interested in the fund and they are sending in their donations every day.

STILL GUARDING MORGAN'S GRAVE

Armed Guard on Duty Eight Months After Death of Financier.

IS WATCHED CLOSELY

Hartford, Conn., Dec. 6.—Although nearly eight months have passed since the body of J. Piedpont Morgan was buried on the summit of Cedar Hill cemetery, the grave is now, as it has been from the day of interment, closely guarded, particularly at night. During the day no specially assigned watchman is kept there, but at sunset an armed guard goes on duty until sunrise.

The body of Mr. Morgan was interred here April 14 in a concrete lined grave, with a huge slab of stone covering it.

A cemetery official said today that the Morgan family is paying for the guard and it will be continued as long as the family desire.

300 TEAMSTERS RETURN TO WORK

Many Resume Places Under Contract in Indianapolis Strike.

MORE IN LINE MONDAY

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 6.—Three hundred union teamsters, who have been on strike since last Sunday midnight, returned to work today and, union officials say, 3,000 will be back in their old places Monday morning. Only those drivers whose employers have signed contracts with the union are permitted to take out teams by the resolution adopted at yesterday's meeting of the teamsters. Labor leaders declare that 300 employers have signed contracts, agreeing to pay the union scale and not discriminate against union men, but at the offices of the Vehicle Owners' association it was said none of the large employers had agreed to the union's demands.

No serious trouble had been reported early today. J. B. Densmore, sent here as a representative of the department of labor, probably will return to Washington tomorrow.

STATE'S CASE NOT COMPLETE

Prosecution Still Offering Testimony in Trial of Dr. Craig.

FADED KIMONO IS PUT IN EVIDENCE

Girl Witness Weeps as She Identifies Garment She Gave Dr. Knabe.

Shelbyville, Ind., Dec. 6.—Court adjourned at noon today until Monday without the state completing its side of the case in the trial of Dr. William B. Craig, charged with the murder of Dr. Helene Knabe.

Miss Augusta Knabe, cousin of Dr. Knabe, was being questioned on direct examination when the state asked that the court adjourn until Monday. It had been expected the state would rest its case before adjournment today.

Miss Knabe wept softly when handed a kimono which she identified as one she had given her cousin as a Christmas present and which Dr. Knabe is said to have worn when answering professional calls in her apartment late at night.

Now a Faded Rag.

The witness said the kimono, when she gave it to the doctor, was a beautiful navy blue with red poppy flowers, but that now it looked like a faded rag. She said she saw it hanging in a closet in Dr. Knabe's flat a short time before the tragedy and the next time she saw it, it was in the possession of Alex M. Ragsdale, undertaker and administrator of the Knabe estate, who was indicted with Craig as an accessory after the fact. The state contends that the kimono was

SWEETHEARTS OF FIFTY YEARS AGO ARE WEDDED.

Canton, Ohio, Dec. 6.—A romance of 50 years was consummated last night when Mrs. Helen Ream, aged 70, became the bride of Jacob Snyder, aged 73. Twenty-two years ago, Mrs. Ream went west and married. Later Snyder also married. Recent deaths left Mrs. Ream a widow and Snyder a widower. A correspondence resulted in the marriage of the aged couple, who were youthful sweethearts.

The Tragedy of the Dinnen Dairy

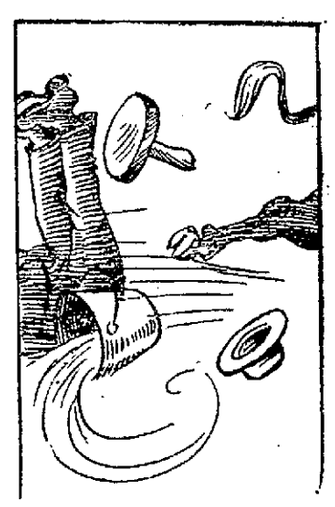
DOCTOR J. M. DINNEN'S family is of such liberal proportions that the physician long ago adopted a system of wholesale measures to meet the problems of the high cost of subsistence. One of the features of his plan contemplates retaining a cinch on the milk problem. The doctor owns a cow.

A man hired for general all-round work for the family has performed the duties of milkmaid for some time. He made it a practice to visit bossy at stated regular intervals and to return with the milk supply for the family. The other day a revision occurred, whereby the man was no longer employed by the doctor, and another man was hired to take his place. The new man proceeded to enter upon the duties of his predecessor and everything went very nicely until milking time rolled around. Repairing to the vicinity of the docile animal, he reconnoitered the neighborhood with the view of a proper approach, when the cow espied him. He was a stranger and acted suspiciously. The result was that when the would-be milkmaid reached the point of procedure in which the actual work was to have been done, the cow showed such a disposition of suspicion that she refused to act in harmony with the program as set down. She wouldn't stand still, and in the course of events the man gave up in despair and reported conditions to the doctor.

"Just you wait a minute," responded "Bob" Dinnen, the doctor's son. "I'll go along and show him how the thing's done."

It was only a short time afterward that a noise as if crashing tinware and dull thuds reached the ears of the people of the neighborhood. It appears that "Bob," after some teasing and coaxing, managed to secure a half-pailful of milk, but by that time the cow was so nervous over the whole proceeding that she found it necessary to stretch a leg, which she did, much to the discomfort of "Bob," who got the full force of it.

Now he is perambulating by the aid of a cane. This relieves the pain of the leg somewhat, but it doesn't in the least lessen the injured feelings of Bunty's friend.



Got the full force of it.

OFFICERS NAMED BY MANY LODGES

L. H. Link is Worshipful Master of Summit City Lodge.

THE OTHER HONORS

The annual business meeting of Summit City lodge No. 170, F. & A. M., was held Friday evening and officers were elected as follows: Worshipful master, L. Heeley Link; senior warden, W. J. E. Stoler and Bertha Goba, physicians; Charlotte Cassiry, musician; Amelia Druhot, delegate to state meeting, and Onnie Good, alternate delegate.

Press Secretary—Marc N. Goodnow, Chicago.

Treasurer—John F. Wallick, Indianapolis.

In making its report the nominating committee announced that for the first time in the history of the association in Indiana, all members of the official board were in their respective seats for the opening of business and the vote that followed for the re-election of the old officers was unanimous.

G. A. Trimble, of Evansville, was appointed to succeed Sharon F. Jones, of Richmond, as a member of the state executive board, and the retiring members of the board were re-elected as follows: O. M. Gregg, Crawfordsville; C. S. Rhoads, Indianapolis; John C. Haswell, Marion; C. D. Emmons, South Bend; J. W. Landrum, Terre Haute; H. M. Dowling, Indianapolis, and E. A. Hanley, Franklin. In addition to these, the board for the next year will be composed of J. F. Wallick, Indianapolis; W. J. Lewis, Evansville; C. C. Reeves, Columbus; S. O. Pickens, Indianapolis; George Lilly, Anderson; B. A. Brown, Brightwood; T. G. Pierson, Spencer; C. B. Coleman, Irvington; D. W. Simms, Lafayette; J. H. Shirk, Peru; W. C. Belman, Hammond; E. S. Gwin, New Albany; W. O. Davies, South Bend; E. C. Eberhart, Mishawaka; B. F. Nesbitt, Vincennes; C. S. Woods, Indianapolis; C. O. Holmes, Gary, and F. J. Kron, Logansport.

Announcement was made that Lafayette is the only city submitting an invitation for the next state convention and when the executive board meets next spring the big meeting will likely be given to that city.

Other business of the morning consisted of committee reports and announcement was made that the association membership in Indiana has registered a gain of nearly 10,000 in ten years. During the last year there was a gain in membership of 1,819, and the state organization is enjoying the most prosperous period of its life, socially, religiously and financially.

Addresses at the morning session were as follows: "The Acknowledgment of a Great Obligation," Dr. E. B. Allen, of Toledo; "Getting One Hundred Thousand," E. M. Willis, of New York, secretary of the international committee. At noon the workers again went to the different shops and factories about the city and with the assistance of the Boy Scouts' quartet, of Auburn, enthusiastic meetings are reported. The quartet furnished the musical program for the shop meetings.

Group Conferences.

Practically the entire afternoon session today is being devoted to group conferences. Nine different departments of the state work are being given the consideration of the delegates and at 6 o'clock this evening, at the conclusion of the conferences, the delegates will visit the new home of the Young Women's Christian association on West Wayne street. Addresses of the afternoon were delivered by Dr. E. B. Allen, of Toledo, and J. Campbell White, of New York city, general secretary of the Laymen's Missionary movement.

The Boys' Dinner.

Four hundred Fort Wayne boys will be entertained at dinner at 6 o'clock this evening in the basement of the First Methodist Episcopal church. The feast is under the general supervision of Scout Commissioner E. T. Jackson, and one feature of the program will be music by the Auburn Boy Scouts' quartet.

The convention program will then follow, beginning at 7:30 o'clock at the First Baptist church with a song service led by E. F. Yarnelle. Rev. C. C. Travis will have charge of the devotions and a musical number will be rendered by the Haydn quartet. Addresses of the evening will be as follows:

"The Real Test of Civilization," Professor John M. Coulter, Ph. D., of the University of Chicago; "The Expansion Business of the Young Men's Christian Association," Charles H. Hayes, of Hillsdale, Mich.

Business Men's Feast.

Two hundred and fifty business men of Fort Wayne and convention delegates assembled at Elk's temple Friday night and enjoyed a sumptuous banquet. One of the first items on the program following was a message of good cheer and congratulations from President Woodrow Wilson to the Indiana Young Men's Christian association.

State President C. B. Kessinger presided as toastmaster and addresses were made by A. W. Johnston, of Cleveland, general manager of the Nickel Plate railroad; State Secretary E. E. Stacy and Frank C. Ball, of Muncie, the man who made possible by generous donations, the building of the handsome Muncie Y. M. C. A. E. L. Mogge, general secretary of the Evansville Y. M. C. A., also delivered a brief talk and requested that Fort Wayne's business men interest themselves in the business of the state convention by attending the sessions and listening to the addresses.

With stereopticon views Secretary Stacy showed what has been done in Indiana in raising funds and building modern Y. M. C. A. homes. When he came to the Auburn, Ind., building, a delegation from that city rose and prolonged cheers were enthusiastically offered in honor of Charles and F. E. Eckhart, donors of the Auburn Y. M. C. A. In showing the local home of the railroad department of the Fort Wayne Y. M. C. A. Mr. Stacy declared it was the first railroad branch organized in the state.

The Y. M. C. A. Work.

"The Y. M. C. A. is building on an average, one new building every five days," declared Mr. Ball in his address. "The organization is gaining rapidly in membership throughout the entire world and all nations are responding to the call for better citizenship offered through the Y. M. C. A. Indiana has occupied its high place in the matter of membership gain and interest in the work being done.

"If Fort Wayne establishes a Y. M. C. A. home it will be one of the most important events in the history of the city. The old canal was an important event, the coming of railroads was important and the establishing of the Pennsylvania shops here was important, but of even more importance is the education of our youth in the manner accomplished by the Y. M. C. A. It is a home, a school and a church. The Y. M. C. A. is a conservation of manhood."

As a Safety Factor.

A. W. Johnson, of Cleveland, general manager of the Nickel Plate railroad, spoke on the subject, "The Association a Great Safety Factor," and among other things said:

"In talking of the railroad department of the Y. M. C. A., I can speak from the viewpoint of a railroad official, and want to say right in the beginning that it is one of the greatest factors for uniting with a clear understanding the man who sells his labor and the man who buys it. It joins the employe and the employer hand in hand for the work of bettering not only the railroad conditions of the country, but also the conditions of every phase of life in our great nation."

Students' Dinner.

While the business men were enjoying the banquet at the Elks' temple a student dinner was in progress at the West Jefferson Street Church of Christ. Dr. Thomas C. Howe presided and the invocation was pronounced by Rev. Oscar R. McKay, of Bluffton. Addresses were delivered as follows: "A Significant Association Development," Charles S. Hayes, Hillsdale, Mich.; "Paying College Debts," A. H. Lichty, state secretary of the Ohio association.

Midnight Meeting.

A novel feature of the convention was a midnight meeting at the Pennsylvania round house under the direction of E. L. Mogge, of Evansville. Music was furnished by Mr. Anderson and W. S. Whitbeck. The employes listened attentively to the message delivered by Mr. Mogge and heard with interest of the work of the Y. M. C. A.

Convention Committees.

During the opening business session of the convention committees were appointed as follows:

Devotional—C. Claude Travis, T. G. Pierson, Spencer, chairman; Homer Showalter, Crawfordsville; George E. Bradford, Peru.

Nominations—F. C. Evans, Crawfordsville; J. C. Fritch, Decatur; Prof. W. C. Latta, Lafayette.

Resolutions—Dan W. Simms, Lafayette; Prof. Paul Roberts, Winona Lake; J. C. Scheffler, Wolvottville; L. F. Truman, Huntington.

State Officers' Report—George W. Landon, Kokomo; John Zimmerman, Auburn; Prof. Laurence Hadley, Richmond.

Finance—Dr. B. A. Brown, Brightwood; J. F. Wallick, Indianapolis; W. W. Chipman, Warsaw; E. L. Sumner, Valparaiso, C. O. Michael, Michigan City.

Business—E. L. Mogge, Evansville; J. F. T. Giles, Richmond; G. E. Klipple, Lafayette.

Credentials—E. B. Vawter, Lafayette; J. E. N. Dillon, Fort Wayne; H. B. Rogers, Richmond.

From Executive Committee.

The annual report of the state executive committee is as follows:

IS SECRETARY OF LAYMEN MOVEMENT

J. CAMPBELL WHITE.

J. Campbell White, of New York, general secretary of the Laymen's Missionary movement, is in Fort Wayne today as a delegate to the Indiana state convention og the Y. M. C. A., and this afternoon he delivered an address at the First Baptist church on the subject, "The Compelling Challenge of the Present World Situation."

AUBURN BOY SCOUT'S QUARTET IS PARTICIPATING IN STATE Y. M. C. A. CONVENTION HERE.

tagged, it won't be the fault of the Hope hospital campaigners. Hundreds of women started out from headquarters this morning with supplies of "Help Hope Hospital" tags, and in spite of rain and generally inclement weather have succeeded in "tagging" Fort Wayne to the extent of several hundred dollars, in addition to the funds gained from this source earlier in the week.

Summed up as a whole, everybody interested in the welfare of Hope hospital is pleased with the results of the campaign during its first week and are ready to take up the canvass with additional enthusiasm and energy next week.

Hospital Brieflets.

A new building is now assured. The only question is how good a one it can be.

Do you know that Hope hospital is taking care of nearly 1,200 patients each year?

Do you know that at certain season's every hospital in Fort Wayne is crowded to the limit?

Do you know that your sick can be cared for better at about half the cost in a good hospital than it can be done in your home?

Do you know that Hope hospital's charges for three-fourths of its rooms less than it costs the hospital to care for patients?

Do you know that the Hope hospital training school for nurses ranks as one of the two highest in the state of Indiana?

Do you know that Hope hospital's standard of efficiency is very high: that it tolerates no incompetents either on the staff of physicians or nurses?

HILLSDALE MAN IS ON THE PROGRAM

CHARLES S. HAYES.

Charles S. Hayes, of Hillsdale, Mich., a well known Y. M. C. A. worker in the Michigan organization, is among others of prominence attending the state convention in session here, and this evening he is to deliver an address on the subject, "The Expanding Business of the Young Men's Christian association."

put through a chemical process to remove blood stains.

Offset Suicide Theory.

The state continued today to try to offset the suicide theory in connection with the woman's death. Miss Katherine McPherson, Dr. Knabe's office girl, in concluding her direct testimony, declared Dr. Knabe was right-handed. Witnesses have testified for the state that the wound in Dr. Knabe's throat started on the right side and the state is attempting to show that Dr. Knabe could not have made the wound herself.

Miss McPherson on cross-examination was questioned closely regarding the garbage can in the Knabe flat, but denied that she sent it to the basement on the morning of the tragedy. The defense contends that the instrument with which the woman's throat was cut and which has not been found, could have been disposed of in that manner. The defense asked a number of questions concerning Miss McPherson's statements to Indianapolis detectives and indicated that an effort might be made to impeach her testimony.

The defense has announced that as soon as the state finishes its case, the defense would ask the court to instruct the jury to bring in a verdict of acquittal on the ground that the state has failed to connect Dr. Craig with the death of Dr. Knabe. Failing of success in this Dr. Craig and his daughter, Marion, will testify.

HEAVY RAINS DUE.

Fort Wayne in Line for Siege of Wet Weather.

According to Weather Forecaster W. S. Palmer, Fort Wayne is right in line for a prolonged siege of wet weather and heavy rains are predicted for tonight and Sunday. It is promised, however, that this part of the country will escape without snow as the temperature will be too warm for a visitation of the flaky substance. Heavy rain is reported from a wide western area and the forerunner of the wet weather arrived early this morning with showers at frequent intervals.

GREATEST YEAR FOR PUBLIC WORK

Member Lennon, of Board of Works, Makes Report to Mayor Grice.

THE MUNICIPAL NEWS

That 1913 has been Fort Wayne's greatest year in the achievement of permanent public work is shown by a report submitted today by E. J. Lennon, member of the board of works in charge of street paving and track elevation operations. The report is made to Mayor Grice and Gustave A. Schwegman, chairman of the board of works.

The summary shows that during the year over eight miles of street pavement have been put down by the city which, added to that done by private contract, brings the total for the year to above nine miles.

Member Lennon's report does not present the summary of work in sidewalk and sewer operations. The provisions made for future track elevation work are set forth and most of this work will doubtless be accomplished during the coming year.

Mr. Lennon's Report.

The report submitted today by Mr. Lennon to the mayor and chairman of the board of works is as follows:

To the Honorable Jesse Grice, Mayor, and Gustave A. Schwegman, president, board of public works, city of Fort Wayne, Ind.:

Gentlemen: By completing and finishing all of the city's work at Broadway, elevation of Wabash railroad tracks under Track Elevation Resolution No. Six (6), which completes all work over which I was placed in charge, except some work pertaining to the circulating system of the water works department, and underground work of the electric light and power works of the city, I hereby make the following report; of work done during the year 1913 which was placed directly under my charge.

By figures submitted you will find that by compiling the number of lineal feet or street paving completed in connection with track elevation is 3,230 feet and 8,245 feet of resurfacing old pavements. Over eight (8) miles of modern city pavements have been laid during this year. The above work was completed under public contract. To this amount of work may be added 4,427 lineal feet of modern street paving work done under private contract, bringing the actual street paving work for the year 1913 to over nine (9) miles of paving work.

Also five (5) track elevation improvements, which are as follows:

City's Part of Work on Elevation.

Harrison Street Subway—All work completed except that part of work directly under the old right of way of the P., F. W. & C. R. R. and the Wabash R. R. tracks.

Uncompleted street paving, 115 lineal feet. This work cannot be done until the Wabash completes its bridge work and the P. F. W. & C. R. R. company removes the false work from its old right of way.

The approximate amount of street paving (not sidewalks) done in connection with this subway, including the lowering and paving of old Grand street, is 9.65 feet. (Eight hundred sixty-five feet.)

Fairfield Avenue Subway—At Wabash, work completed and accepted at this subway is 375 lineal feet of brick street pavement.

Broadway at Wabash—Work completed this day, Dec. 6th, 1,013 lineal feet of brick street, pavement including Michigan avenue and Guthrie street approaches, approximately 1,050 feet.

Union Street Subway—At Pennsylvania.—Work completed and accepted—lineal feet of brick pavement 400 feet.

College Street—Subway at P., F. W. & C. R. R. Tracks—Work completed and accepted—Lineal feet of brick pavement, including Jones street approaches, 540 feet.

Total number of lineal feet of street paving done in connection with the five track elevation jobs during this season, 3,230 feet. (These figures may vary a little from final measurements).

Provisions for Future Track Elevation

Taylor Street and Thompson Avenue at Wabash—False work in tracks elevated. Contractor for city's part of work, Brooks Construction Co.; work to be completed August 1, 1914.

Osage Street, at the Tracks of the N. Y., C. & St. L. R. R. and L. E. & W. Tracks—Resolution pending action of common council.

Garden Street, at Pennsylvania—Resolution for opening street confirmed, assessment made and approved. Date set for confirmation.

Clinton Street, at Pennsylvania and the Wabash—Right of way secured under tracks of Wabash and for the right of way over Pennsylvania property. The resolution is confirmed and assessment roll pending.

TALKING PAVEMENT AGAIN.

Property Owners of Taylor and Putnam Streets Have Second Thought.

Resident property owners of Taylor and Putnam streets, for the paving of which thoroughfares resolutions were killed by remonstrance Thursday night, are having second thought on the subject and some have advised the board of works that they would like to have their matters reopened for consideration by the board. It is not at all probable that this will be done. The board is taking the position that the declaratory resolutions for these improvements were adopted pursuant to regular and legal petitions of resident property owners and that further procedure was stopped by valid remonstrance. Any further steps the residents of these streets desire to take will be left to the board of the incoming administration.

BUILDING OPERATIONS HALT.

No Permit Issued by Inspector Wyss Since November 28.

The midwinter slump of building operations in Fort Wayne is evidenced by the fact that City Building Inspector Philip Wyss has not issued a building permit since the 28th of last month. While the weather has continued favorable for outdoor work of the sort, builders are not taking many chances on a continuance of auspicious conditions. The year has shown a marked decrease from last year's big total, but at the same time it has been a remarkable year for building, residential construction making up the bulk of operations.

SUBWAY SIDEWALK ALMOST DONE

Reconstruction of the sidewalk on the west side of the Calhoun street subway is almost completed by the Moellering Construction company and it may be possible to open it for traffic by tomorrow or Monday.

GAINING ON SCOURGE AGAIN.

The records of the health department show that there is a decrease i diphtheria i the city. There are ow 24 cases in 15 families, but one case aving been reported durig thne past twenty-four hours. There are four cases of scarlet fever in the city in as many families. A number of homes will be released from quarantine next week. The holiday vacation in the schools is expected to give the health department a big advantage in overcoming the spread of the scourge.

TUMOR OF BRAIN CAUSED HIS DEATH

Autopsy Held at Lagrange Shows Jesse Downs, of Fort Wayne, Succumbed to Natural Causes.

Lagrange, Ind., Dec. 6.—As the result of an inquest held by Dr. Stewart H. Schrock, deputy coroner, in connection with the sudden death of Jesse F. Downs, early Monday morning at his home at Fort Wayne, the body was released and burial was permitted.

Downs, who was until two or three years ago a blacksmith at Mongo, died from a tumor at the base of his brain, according to the certificate of the attending physician at Fort Wayne, and with the attending physician Dr. Schrock officially agrees.

Relatives of the dead man, however, were not satisfied with the opinion of the attending physician, and, upon the arrival of the body and funeral party at Lagrange, demanded an inquest and an autopsy.

This demand was bitterly opposed by the widow and her brother, however, and considerable family discord was suggested.

In compliance with the requirements of the law, however, and the demand of those who insisted upon an investigation, Dr. Schrock convened an inquest at his office.

All of the relatives, including the widow, were called as witnesses and examined by the deputy coroner.

Meanwhile the body was held at the Caton Brothers' undertaking rooms awaiting the result of the investigation.

After hearing both sides of the matter, Dr. Schrock held that an autopsy would not be required and that, in his opinion, death had resulted from a brain tumor or from a brain abscess, the symptoms being similar.

Downs died after only a few hours of illness, and that fact was the cause of the insistence of some of his relatives that an official investigation be made.

ROB LAW OFFICE AT NOON.

Goshen Thieves Obtain $50 in Cash and $4,000 in Papers.

Goshen, Ind., Dec. 6.—The law office of Deahl & Deahl, located over the Elkhart County Trust company, in the heart of the city, was robbed during the noon hour. Fifty dollars in cash and papers valued at $4,000 were taken from the safe. Payment was immediately stopped on six certificates of deposit of $500 each on the Millersburg state bank, one for $350 on the Salem bank of this city, and on several checks for sums ranging as high as $50. Whoever committed the theft evidently entered by means of a skeleton key or was hiding in the office when it was locked at noon. Nothing about the rooms was disturbed and the theft was not discovered till 1:30 o'clock. Officers are working on a slight clue.

EFFECT OF THE REVIVAL.

Warsaw, Ind., Dec. 6.—During the recent revival "Bob" Jones stated that the campaign would be worth while if it were only for the effect it would have in causing people to pay their debts. The evangelist's prophecy is coming true. Warsaw merchants have reported quite a number of instances where people have called to settle old accounts or to right dishonest transactions that took place many years ago. These actions are attributed to the work of the revival. The words of the evangelist started many people to think and their thought naturally carried them back to times when they had taken advantage of some person in a business dealing or to the fact that they were not treating merchants properly in their present dealings. The result has been the settlement of many old claims.

VERA CRUZ CITIZENS PROTEST.

Bluffton, Ind., Dec. 6.—The people of Vera Cruz, east of Bluffton, are complaining to the prosecutor of a crowd of boys of that town who keep the air filled with bullets all day long and make the nights hideous with unnecessary noise from rifles, revolvers and dynamite. It seems that a party of young men of that place have been making a practice of shooting at a mark in the day time and every once in a while one of the bullets will come singing gaily up the main street and narrowly miss some innocent bystander. Then starting as soon as it is dark they get in the dark part of town and shoot revolvers, rifles and dynamite. One night this week it was impossible for the people of the town to sleep on account of the noise and the people who have been disturbed state that unless the practice is stopped, charges will be filed.

WARTELL

The Jeweler

1318 Calhoun

Here's the Story:

SECURES TEN-YEAR LEASE.

Benjamin Wartell, the Jeweler, Will Occupy Room in Schmitz Block

Benjamin Wartell, the well known jewelry dealer at 1318 Calhoun street, has just closed a deal whereby he has leased the building at 928 Calhoun street, formerly occupied by Woods & Co., next to the Packard Piano store, for the next ten years.

Mr. Wartell has been in business in Fort Wayne for the last six years and his business has grown so rapidly that it made it necessary to seek larger quarters. The new store, which will open on or about January the first, will be known as the "Diamond House," as nothing but diamond jewelry will be kept in stock. The building will be equipped with the latest and most up-to-date fixtures.

The deal has just been made after Mr. Wartell had bought all his Christmas stock and his entire stock, including the Christmas goods, will be sold at a sacrifice to the public. The fixtures of his store will also be sold and the present store will be for rent.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET NAMED.

Adams County Primaries Bring Out a Good-Sized Vote.

Decatur, Ind., Dec. 6.—The democrats of Adams county yesterday elected in primaries the ticket to be voted for next November. The vote, while not heavy, is considered good-sized. There were lively contests for prosecuting attorney and for county commissioners, the "wet" and "dry" issues cutting considerable of a figure. Following are the results of the primaries:

For Representative—R. C. Parrish, 1,941.

For Prosecuting Attorney—J. Fred Fruechte, 1,656; Merlin M. Dunbar, 1,100. Fruechte's majority, 556.

For Surveyor—Phil Macklin, 2,149.

For Sheriff—Ed Green, 1,939; William Anderson, 715; Henry Rodenbeck, 434. Green's plurality, 1,224.

For Clerk—Will Hammel, 1,033; Chas. Oetting, 826; John T. Kelley, 998. Hammell's plurality, 35.

For Recorder—A. A. Augsburger, 1,269; Charles Magley, 919; Fred Schaub, 738. Augsburger's plurality, 350.

For Treasurer—George Kinzle, 1,531; Will Archbold, 1,345. Kinzle's plurality, 186.

For Assessor—William Frazier, 1,425; William Zimmerman, 1,194. Frazier's plurality, 391.

For Coroner—D. D. Clark, 1,819.

For Commissioner, First District—David Dilling, 997; John Nidlinger, 865; H. Fred Scheumann, 551; Fred Thieme, 447. Dilling's plurality, 132.

For Commissioner, Second District—Will Reppert, 1,839; Ira Waggoner, 758. Reppert's plurality, 1,074.

Ed Augenbaugh was nominated for trustee of St. Mary's township, in which Decatur is located, by ten votes over the nearest of his two rivals.

SCHOOL HEAD HAS RESIGNED.

Columbia City, Ind., Dec. 6.—Prof. J. E. Tanner, who has been the superintendent of the South Whitley schools since they began last September, tendered his resignation to the school board of that town Friday, and will leave at once for Indianapolis, where he has accepted a good position as claim agent for the industrial board of the state. His uncle is a member of the board and it was through his influence that the position was secured for him.

Mr. Tanner was giving good satisfaction at the head of the South Whitley schools and it was unfortunate that he decided to give up the place in the midst of the school year. Mr. F. M. Schroeder, of Larwill, an experienced teacher, will succeed Prof. Tanner and will be ready for business Monday morning.

CAN HAVE BUT FOUR SALOONS.

Auburn, Ind., Dec. 6.—Garrett, under the law, is entitled by population to but four saloons and Henry E. Ritter will have to go out of business. County Attorneys Link and Atkinson have just submitted to the county commissioners an opinion to this effect. Two years ago the commissioners acted on four applications for Garrett, the population being between 4,000 and 5,000. Attorney General Honan gave an opinion that a fifth license could be granted on the fraction of 1,000 population and Ritter was given a license. The same conditions exist this year, but the commissioners asked for an opinion with the foregoing result and Ritter will have to quit.

NAMED NATIONAL AIDES.

Auburn, Ind., Dec. 6.—Mrs. Anna Silvers and Mrs. G. A. Braun have just received official notice to the effect that Mrs. Ida McBride, of Indianapolis, national president of the W. R. C. has appointed them aides on her national staff. Mrs. Silvers and Mrs. Braun will be under the direction of the national president and it will be their duty to visit corps within close proximity of Auburn, and lend whatever influence they can to enliven relief corps work in their respective territories. Both of the local aides have been especially active in relief corps work and the appointment came to them much as a reward for service in the past and the interest they have manifested in relief corps work.

TO FOUR-TRACK LAKE SHORE.

Goshen, Ind., Dec. 6.—It is stated unofficially that the Lake Shore will in a few weeks start work on extending the four track system from Goshen to Kendallville. There are at present four tracks connecting Elkhart and Goshen and there are three between this city and Millersburg. At different points on the road between Chicago and Buffalo there are four tracks in use. At Millersburg many changes will be wrought in the yards there when four tracks are used. Thirty feet will be added to the right of way and the passenger station will be moved to the south side of the tracks. It will be reached by an overhead bridge.

FIGHTING SCARLET FEVER.

Decatur, Ind., Dec. 6.—The health authorities in this city are taking active measures against a possible spread of scarlet fever, of which occasional cases have appeared during the past few weeks. An inspection of pupils in the West ward school by Dr. Miller, the health officer, revealed twenty-nine sore throats and in eight instances there were defined early stages of the disease. The entire building was dismissed and thoroughly disinfected. In one room of the North ward school, where a case had developed, the pupils were dismissed and the room disinfected.

WILL VOTE ON SALOONS.

Defiance, O., Dec. 6.—A local option election will be held in Mark township, Defiance county, December 19, the township at present being in the dry column.

WELL KNOWN HOTEL IS CLOSED.

Montpelier, Ind., Dec. 6.—The Columbia hotel, an old and widely known hostelry of this city, has been closed by the sheriff and at a sale to be held by that official December 20 the furniture and other equipment will be sold to satisfy a judgment taken against R. G. Bloomfield, owner of the place, by George Ely. The closing of the Columbia hotel puts out of business after a long career of a popular stopping place. During the oil boom in the early '90's it did a thriving business and was the center of excited activities in Montpelier. It is believed it will be reopened.

G. R. COFFIN DIES IN WARSAW.

Warsaw, Ind., Dec. 6.—George R. Coffin is dead at his home in East Fort Wayne street, following an illness caused from tuberculosis to which he fell a victim last July. For some weeks he had been in a critical condition. He was born in 1842 in Allen county, Pennsylvania. He has been a resident of this city for more than thirteen years. He was a veteran of the civil war and was a member of Company B, 45th Volunteer Infantry. For a number of years he was state manager of the Phoenix Insurance Co., of Detroit, Mich., where he was located previous to coming to this city. There are no children, his only surviving relative being his wife.

FIND BODY OF STRANGER.

Goshen, Ind., Dec. 6.—The body of a man whom no one here was able to identify was found in the water of the canal under a bridge at the foot of Madison street here. Two lads who had been amusing themselves along the canal bank by shooting at tin cans in the water made the discovery. Coroner Mast said the body had been in the water probably three weeks. Nothing was found by which to identify the remains and decomposition had progressed so far as to make recognition impossible. The body was buried in the potter's field.

TO SAVE MONTPLLIER RACE TRACK

Montpelier, Ind., Dec. 6.—The effort to save the famous Montpelier half-mile race track is meeting with such degree of success that it is believed the project for selling the buildings, tearing down the fence and generaly dismantling the driving park will come to a successful issue. The remaining stock of $3,250 is rapidly being taken and the old stockholders, who were trying to get the track off their hands, now say they will stay in and help to make the Montpelier races "bigger and better than ever."

SUICIDE WAS NOT SHORT.

Warsaw, Ind., Dec. 6.—A statement issued by the counsel of Wawasee camp at Syracuse, M. W. of A. states that Ed Deardorf, who suicided some time ago, was not short in his accounts with the lodge. Mr. Lingofelter says that the suicide was clerk of the camp for three years and his accounts were always right and he was a good worker for the camp.

DELPHOS PAIR FLEE TO WED.

Van Wert, Dec. 6.—The Van Wert city teachers' institute will be held at the central building Wednesday, Dec. 10. The chief speaker of the occasion will be Prof. William A. McKeever, of the State Agricultural college, Manhattan, Kan.

VAN WERT CAPTAIN RESIGNS.

Van Wert, Ohio, Dec. 6.—William W. McGirr, captain of company D, Second regiment, O. N. G., has resigned his commission. First Lieut. J. H. Morrison is temporarily in charge of the company.

WHO'S WHO IS A PUZZLE.

Strange Relationship Hard to Figure Out.

Littleton, Ill., Dec. 6.—When Mrs. Katie M. Welsh, aged 43, became the wife of Luther G. Welsh, aged 66, of this place, who is the father of her divorced husband, she started a novel muddle in relationships.

By her first marriage she has a son, Jan Welsh, now married and the father of a daughter, Viola. By her second marriage Mrs. Welsh became stepmother to her divorced husband, from whom she got a decree two years ago.

She is step-grandmother of her own son, step-great-grandmother of her own grandchild, Viola Welsh, daughter of her son by her first marriage.

"DON'T SHOOT; I'M A COW."

Sign On Cow's Back Warning to Deer Hunters.

Lee, Mass., Dec. 6.—"Don't shoot me; I'm a cow."

These words, in big black letters, were displayed on white blankets worn by all the animals in the herd of a farmer in the open season for deer.

None of the cows was shot and the farmer insists the warning had much to do with their safety.

Wisconsin's new law protecting frogs in their breeding season is believed to be the first of the kind in the world.

Newbro's Herpicide in 50c and $1.00 sizes is sold by all dealers who guarantee it to do all that is claimed. If you are not satisfied your money will be refunded.

Applications may be obtained at the best barber shops and hair dressing parlors. For sale at all drug stores.—Adv.

$150,000 FOR THE DISCOVERY OF HOW TO USE A VEGETABLE

The discovery of how to use a vegetable in the right way has made for a young European singer a fortune. A few years ago it was unknown in America and now Waw-Waw is to be found in the principal hotels, railroads and homes in this country. The singer, who had suffered for years with severe indigestion, made the recipe to contain the vegetable, which had been mentioned to him by a celebrated French doctor as a marvelous digestive. The great cooks of Europe have pronounced Waw-Waw unequalled and the success of this sauce has been phenomenal. Add a little Waw-Waw to the cooking and in the soups, salads, with hot and cold meats and fish and notice how easily you digest anything and what a piquancy and delicious flavor it adds. A 25-cent bottle from your local grocer will convince you how much more you will enjoy your food and how very easily you can digest anything. Waw-Waw (an obsolete South American word for vegetable) is a vegetable sauce and guaranteed pure. It is unlike any other sauce, and although it resembles in flavor a Worcestershire, yet the ingredients used are quite different. Miss Lillian Russell (the beautiful actress), writes: "Waw-Waw is delicious. Added to soups, salads, meats and fish it is unequalled."

THE SENTINEL'S DAILY SCRIPTURE READING.

11 Corinthians 5:1-10.

1 For we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.

2 For in this we groan, earnestly desiring to be clothed upon with our house which is from heaven;

3 If so be that being clothed we shall not be found naked.

4 For we that are in this tabernacle do groan, being burdened; not for that we would be unclothed, but clothed upon, that mortality might be swallowed up of life.

5 Now he that hath wrought us for the selfsame thing is God, who also hath given unto us the earnest of the Spirit.

6 Therefore we are always confident, knowing that, whilst we are at home in the body, we are absent from the Lord;

7 (For we walk by faith, not by sight;)

8 We are confident, I say, and willing rather to be absent from the body, and to be present with the Lord.

9 Wherefore we labor, that, whether present or absent, we may be accepted of Him.

10 For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ; that every one may receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 6, 1913.

The County Agent.

Recent local efforts toward securing the appointment of a "county agent" for Allen county serves to call attention to a new influence for progress that is rapidly taking hold in this state as the outcome of a new law passed by the last legislature. The general public has hardly had opportunity to become sufficiently acquainted with the project to fully comprehend either its precise character or its possibilities for good.

Briefly, the new officer is out into the county as the farmers' expert. His mission is to promote better agriculture and better home life in the rural communities, to cultivate the work of the farmers' club and the boys' and girls' clubs which are coming to be an important feature of life upon the farm, and finally to assist in the direction of the new agricultural vocational education that is to be put into the schools. The state is endowing the position to the extent of half the county agent's salary, the remaining half to be borne by the county to which he is assigned.

Under the law no county agent may be a native of the county in which he will labor. He must have had practical experience and scientific training, and be able to bring new light into the community. All the agents are to be appointed by Purdue and are under the direction of the agricultural department of the university. The agent must be a soil expert, and must be able to practically meet the problems that confront the farmer. He must be prepared to give counsel and advice that will tend to larger returns from the soil, and must be in deepest sympathy with the work of development of Indiana's agricultural possibilities to meet the needs of the present day. He is the evangelist of better farming and more attractive rural life. Twenty-two Indiana counties have already taken the steps necessary to secure the appointment of a county agent. It is an opportunity that Allen county cannot afford to allow to pass by.

International President Daniel J. Tobin, of the teamsters' union, counselled with wisdom at Indianapolis in his opposition to a general strike in support of the strike of the union teamsters now in progress in that city. It is extremely doubtful if such an eventuality as a general strike would do more than to aggravate differences already existing, and to cause needless suffering and hardship to additional thousands. Recent agreement for arbitration in the street railway strike at Indianapolis ought to be a powerful factor in enforcing similar adjudication of the teasmster's trouble and fully protect the rights of each side of the embittered controversy.

What would ordinarily be considered as a petty robbery but which in the light of present prices must be ranked with high crimes and misdemeanors, has just occurred at Logansport. A thief who burglarized his way into a restaurant in that city ate a grand total of eight eggs and a quantity of boiled ham which the proprietor had carelessly neglected to place in the safety-deposit vault for the night.

Fort Wayne is leading all Indiana cities in the sale of the Christmas seals. Characteristic modesty alone prevents the observation that Fort Wayne is in the habit of leading in so many good things that the present case seems but the most natural thing in the world.

Opponents of the cause of woman suffrage will hardly win support by their declaration that the demand for the ballot for woman is an appeal against established law. That is precisely what all reform has been since the day the world began seeking to advance.

A BIG FAMILY BY ADOPTION.

(Indianapolis Star.)

The wealthy Chicago woman who plans to adopt fifteen children, each to represent one of the fifteen most characteristic racial types, will at least undertake an interesting ethnological and sociological experiment. Her purpose is to take these children while they are yet babies, and, bringing them up in one family and sending them to the public schools, to show that in spite of inherited racial qualities they will assimilate and be brothers and sisters in spirit.

A woman who can voluntarily undertake to "mother" fifteen children under any circumstances proves her possession of a strong maternal feeling. The woman in this case has, in addition, an intellectual and scientific interest in the effect upon each other of the widely diverse natures when brought into association in infancy. If she has the staying qualities necessary to the successful carrying out of her important venture she will doubtless take keen pleasure in watching the development of the children as they grow up together and in noting the extent to which racial traits persist unchanged or are modified.

Children of many nationalities are often brought together, of course, in orphanages, but they are separated from each other while young, so that the influences that are to be put in operation by the Chicago lady are not tested. Two or three children of different races are frequently reared together, but an experiment as extensive as the one proposed is unique and is likely to attract much attention.

Apart from the scientific features of the undertaking, the adoption of fifteen children into one family is an unusual proceeding. Even wealthy people seldom taking into their homes and lives more than one child not theirs by birth; rarely, indeed, more than two. But while the adoption of enough youngsters to populate an orphan asylum is to assume a heavy responsibility, it is a way of rendering social service that wins admiration. The world is full of people who have no proper outlet for their energies. They are not compelled to toil for their bread, and for lack of an occupation and motive in life often find existence dull. They could find no more absorbing occupation than the rearing of a group of children and in no way could they so well serve their fellow creatures and make their own lives worth while.

PRESS ON REPORT OF SECRETARY OF NAVY.

Find Satisfaction.

Brooklyn Eagle: "Those Americans who believe that the United States should have the most efficient navy in the world and a navy large enough to maintain our national dignity everywhere will find satisfaction in the recommendations of Secretary Daniels."

Not Enough.

Providence Journal: "Secretary Daniels asks congress for two capital ships. That is not enough to make up for the lapse in the construction program, the cutting out of a ship last year in favor of the pork barrel."

Four Ships Needed.

Philadelphia Bulletin: "The two battleship program this year will not make up for the sidestepping of the last congress. Four rather than two battleships is the needed quota."

A Strong Reason.

Pittsburg Sun: "Completion of the Panama canal is a strong reason for a larger American navy."

Personnel of Service.

Washington Herald: "Mr. Daniels' recommendations, contemplating the improvement of conditions affecting the personnel of the service, will meet with cordial sympathy."

Secretary's Policy.

Buffalo Commercial: "Evidently the secretary's policy is to go slow, but to keep going."

Inspiring.

Buffalo Courier: "Evidently Mr. Daniels has taken hold of his work with enthusiasm. The country's naval establishment, its shops and its personnel, are inspiring—the world has not seen finer."

One of Reasons.

St. Louis Times: "Perhaps the fact that Secretary of the Navy Daniels is a newspaper man is one of the reasons why he has taken such a wholly commendable stand in relation to a national naval policy."

P. A. Randall Talks of Fort Wayne's Duty to Waterways Congress.

IS A GREAT MEETING

(By P. A. Randall.)

Washington, D. C., Dec. 6.—The attendance at the National Rivers and Harbors congress, in session here, is the greatest for many years. It is estimated that it will be between 4,000 and 5,000 while the actual registration is more than 3,000. Fort Wayne is represented here by Colonel D. N. Foster, Mr. S. F. Bowser and myself. Huntington has two representatives—Hawley and Bartlett. Evansville has six delegates; Madison three and the rest of the state less than a half dozen. No one is here from South Bend, Elkhart or Goshen. Mr. Charles E. Zollars and wife are here as delegates from Chicago. Last year Indiana had three delegates and this year about twenty. The interest all over the nation in the congress is seemingly in the same proportion as that from Indiana.

The National Rivers and Harbors congress is deserving of greatest interest on the part of the people of Fort Wayne. We have, without doubt, one of the most important waterway projects in the nation. This is recognized by the army engineers who have made the preliminary survey of the route. Mr. Bowser, Mr. Hawley and myself went over this report yesterday afternoon. It contains about 100 closely typewritten pages and discloses the most painstaking and careful discussion of the entire project. It is a wonderful report and fills the heart of the canal booster with joy to read it. It shows the deepest interest of the engineers in the canal and they point out by facts and figures that it is what its promoters have always claimed, the most important waterway yet to be constructed in the nation.

Senator Henry M. Hill, of Buffalo, in a speech at the convention yesterday afternoon, referred to the Michigan and Erie canal in the most eloquent terms and declared:

"It was a project that must be carried to completion."

Every New York man whom one meets has nothing but commendation for what we are doing. A group of New York men, nearly a dozen in number, said to me yesterday that the New York and Chicago barge canal must be built if New York people had to build it. This statement was brought out by a speech made at the congress by an official of the Canadian government. He said Canada was now at work deepening the Welland canal to thirty feet so that it could carry the largest lake steamers from Chicago and Duluth and Cleveland and Buffalo through to Montreal without any breaking of bulk. He said Montreal has the largest and finest ocean port on the North American continent and that this port was equipped with the best loading and unloading devices of any port in the world. This means that New York is going to be sidetracked for traffic on her state canal by the Canadian waterways unless the Fort Wayne canal is built. New York must have our canal. She could afford to build it if the government does not. We do not expect such a necessity to arise, for the government will build the canal. One thing is sure—the people of New York and New Jersey and New England will be on hand at all times to see that the government does construct this link in the most important waterway in the nation.

Another thing was told us by the Canadian speaker and that is Canada, with a present population of 8,000,000, has spent $365,000,000 on her waterway improvements, while the United States, with a population of over ninety millions, has spent since the foundation of the government, to this time, on all her river and harbor improvements, only $700,000.

Canada has spent dollars where we have spent cents. If we had spent on our waterways in proportion to our population as much money as Canada has, our expenditures would have been over four billion dollars or $3,300,000,000 more than we have spent. Such statements make Americans ashamed of themselves and lead to the thought that we ought to be more liberal in providing cheap transportation for our people.

One cannot attend the meeting of the National Rivers and Harbors congress, with its representatives from every part of the nation, without being filled full of waterway enthusiasm. The National Rivers and Harbors congress is the one great meeting place for men to urge upon the government the needs of waterway development. It is the one instrument that the people have of informing the general government of what the country wants. The meetings are held under the eves of the United States capitol, in close proximity to the senate and congress. Many congressmen and senators and members of the cabinet are members of this waterway congress and many others attend its meetings. This congress has done great things for our waterway development. It has increased our appropriations for rivers and harbors from less than twenty millions per year to over fifty millions per year. It has done away with the stigma long attached to the Rivers and Harbors committee that it was a pork barrel where the greedy congressmen could get something for his district whether it was deserved or not.

If we expect to get our canal completed within any reasonable time, we must give more attention to this national Rivers and Harbors congress. We must send it more money and we must send it more delegates.

The First Presbyterian Church.

The Sabbath school will commence promptly at 9:45 a. m. and there are classes for old and young. The Men's Bible class under the leadership of Rev. T. Potts, has a helpful and inspiring half hour of Bible study. The morning service commences at 11 a. m. In the evening at 7:30 there is a song service led by Edward F. Yarnelle and the church choir, and this service is proving attractive to a steadily increasing number. On this Sabbath evening the minister will use Dr. Henry Van Dyke's story of the "Other Wise Man" as an illustration of his address on the character of Christian service. This story has meant so much to many and is so appropriate to the Christmas season that all who hear it will find pleasure and profit in it. There is always a cordial welcome at the old First for all strangers.

First Baptist Church.

At 9:30—Home Sunday school in parlors. Organized classes for both men and women.

All men attending the Y. M. C. A. the great Men's Bible class taught by the pastor, Rev. C. H. Smashall. Half a hundred men to receive you at the doors. Come.

At 9:00—Oliver Sunday school, corner McKee street. Oliver is now in a great revival.

At 10:45—Regular morning worship. This service will be supplied by one of the speakers attending the Y. M. C. A. convention.

At 6:30—B. Y. P. U. meeting; topic, "The Ideal Christian." Six business men from the Y. M. C. A. convention will each give bright and stirring testimonies and help in the leading of this special service. All delegates to the convention are wanted.

At 7:30—Everybody's service. The great and closing meetings of the convention will be held from this convention church. In charge of experts. A number of our neighboring churches will unite with us.

Wednesday evening at 7:45—Prayer meeting; topic, "Preparing for a Revival;" 2 Chron. 7:14; Mal. 3:10; Luke 24:29; Acts 2:1. A great meeting for all.

Every evening at Oliver. The crowds are increasing and all the extra chairs are now filled. Thirty or forty have already taken a stand for Christ. Let the old first help by prayer and influence. Rev. and Mrs. Walton, English evangelists, who use the "movie" picture machine, are in charge.

Widow Sues for $50,000.

The Pennsylvania Railroad company was made the defendant in a $50,000 damage suit filed in the federal court by Isabella Pfitidner as administratrix of the estate of Charles J. Pfleidner, deceased. Jesse Macbeth and W. E. Clapham are attorneys for the plaintiff.

The complaint charges the Pennsylvania company with carelessness resulting in the killing of Charles J. Pfleidner in the local yards of the company on August 18, 1913. The deceased was a conductor on a switch engine and was attempting, so it is alleged, to manipulate a defective coupler when the car on which he was at work was kicked in such a manner as to horribly mangle and instantly kill him. It is said he was an able bodied man at the time and capable of earning $125 per month and his death leaves a widow and two children without visible means of support.

DEATH COMES TO MRS. LOUISA RYAN

Pioneer Fort Wayne Woman Passes Away at Home of Daughter.

THE OTHER DEATHS

Mrs. Louisa Ryan, widow of Daniel Ryan and a resident of Fort Wayne for nearly a half century, died at an early hour this morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. J. Edmiston, at New Lexington, O., where she had resided for the past few years. News of her death was telegraphed to relatives in Fort Wayne and the remains will arrive here Sunday evening.

Mrs. Ryan was 76 years of age. She was born at Somerset, O., October 22, 1837, and resided there until 1867, when she was wedded to Mr. Ryan. Immediately after their marriage they came to Fort Wayne, where she resided continuously until a few years ago when she went to make her home with a daughter, Mrs. Ryan was one of the best known members of the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception and of the different societies of that congregation. She was a graduate of St. Mary's academy at St. Mary's, O., and was known as a woman of lofty character and charitable disposition. Her death is deeply mourned by hundreds of acquaintances.

Surviving she leaves six children—Attorney William C. Ryan, Oscar D., Charles J. and Harry F. Ryan, of this city; Thomas J. Ryan, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Mrs. J. J. Edmiston, of New Lexington, O.

The remains will be removed to the residence of William C. Ryan, 408 Old Fort place.

Funeral services Tuesday morning at 8:30 o'clock from the residence and at 9 o'clock from the Cathedral with interment at the Catholic cemetery.

LOARINE.

Edward Stephen Loarine, aged 28 years, a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Loarine, died at 11:30 o'clock Friday night at 1910 Oliver street after a prolonged illness from complications. The young man had been a lifelong resident of New Haven and had been in Fort Wayne only two weeks.

He was born in New Haven April 5, 1885, and was educated in the parochial schools of St. John's Catholic church. He was a bartender by trade. Surviving besides the parents he leaves two sons, Bernard and Edward Loarine, six brothers and two sisters—John, Nicholas, Charles, Henry and Lester Loarine, Mrs. Lester Girardot and Mrs. Charles Bush. He was a member of the Catholic Benevolent society and of the French-American society.

Funeral services Tuesday morning from St. John's Catholic church at New Haven.

SULLEN, MOROSE; SILENT FOR DAYS

Lena Munro Finally Got a Bit Tired of Living With a Mute.

NEWS OF THE COURTS

In a divorce complaint filed in the superior court by Lena L. Munro against Redmond B. Munro, it is charged that the plaintiff was sullen and morose and would go for days without speaking to his wife. Also he persisted in wrongfully accusing her of infidelity so that finally all love the plaintiff once had borne toward him was quenched and now living with him is impossible. The wife states that several weeks before their separation he became so obsessed by his belief in her unfaithfulness that he packed up his clothing and left, saying he was not coming back, and remained away for several days. The plaintiff asks that her maiden name of Lena L. Neff be restored. They were married in March, 1911, and separated the 1st of this month.

Husband Deserted Her.

Pearl Neuenschwander files a divorce complaint in the superior court against Robert Neuenschwander stating that they were married in April, 1911, and that in the following November he deserted her and has not since made provision for her support.

An Unusual Ground of Divorce.

In the superior court today Judge Yaple issued a decree of divorce to Flora Rose and Charles W. Rose. The complaint was that the plaintiff was trying at all times to live a Christian life and that her husband scoffed at her, tried to influence her away from paths of righteousness and called her a "wolf in sheep's clothing."

Minor Notes of the Courts.

A petition has been filed in the superior court praying for a dissolution of the Bear Valley Farm and Orchard company, a concern incorporated by Eugene M. Fitch and others to do a realty business. It is set out in the petition that none of the stock has ever been issued, no business done or debts incurred by the corporation. Making periodical reports required by law has become an annoyance and the incorporators want the concern dissolved.

In the superior court George F. Lew has sued James T. Reid and others to foreclose a mechanic's lien, demanding $40.

The Woodburn Hardware company has commenced suit in the superior court against Leora E. Sweet for $80 on account.

The receiver has filed his final report in the case of Henry Franke vs. Christian Franke and has been discharged by the superior court.

The superior court has granted a divorce to Nina Menefee from Oscar Menefee.

E. M. Baltes & Co. have sued Harry P. Menefee in the superior court for $240 on a note.

The superior court case of Milton G. Kimmel against the city of Fort Wayne for damages was settled today by agreement, the plaintiff accepting $1,075.

The case of Joseph A. Smith vs. the Archer Printing company, has been dismissed from the superior court.

The suit of Ruby Hamilton vs. Earl Riley, has been dismissed by the superior court.

PRISONERS TAKEN AWAY.

Joseph Remearski and Albert Kramer, convicted of forgery and sentenced to from one to eight years in the reformatory, were taken Friday to Jeffersonville by Oscar Schliebecker and Herman Stroedel, specially deputized by Sheriff A. C. Gladieux for that purpose. In charge of Miss Rose Swetz, specially deputized, Alice Baker, an incorrigible girl, has been taken to the girls' school at Indianapolis.

NEW CLUB INCORPORATES.

The Brindle club is the name of a new social organization that has just filed articles of incorporation with County Recorder Hursh. The objects are "mutual pleasure," the maintenance of clubrooms and the serving of refreshments. Frank J. Roussel and six others are the incorporators.

Society

"Not going to give a Charity ball? Why, of course we are and one of the prettiest and most successful of the many affairs of the kind as well. Certainly people want to go to the ball and many are willing to donate to a society event at which they receive something in return for what they pay, than merely give to the cause." All of which was the response to the question concerning the possible omission of the ball because of the present effort to raise a certain sum for the beneficiary of the annual holiday affair, Hope hospital. Invitation tickets to the ball were mailed today. The ball will be given in the Anthony hotel, December 26. Many donationshave been made for the affair. The use of the hotel has been donated, printing of tickets, etc. and other things that would lessen the amount received from the sale of tickets, so that people who purchase tickets can do so with the knowledge that their donation will materially give aid to the hospital as well as give them pleasure.

Society will find the coming week a a busy one, for Christmas giving is pressing the buyers, social events are demanding the trying on of new gowns, letters are coming announcing the near arrival of the boys and girls from college, and holiday visitors while the inevitable church bazar and numerous activities outside of society are pushing their noses in for recognition. The coming week's calendar for social matters embraces two large affairs, the reception to be given by Mrs. Robert Millard on Friday afternoon at which a number of ladies from out of town will receive and the reception ball to be given at the Anthony hotel the same evening by Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Gorham and Miss Georgiana Bond. The hours for the evening party are from 8 to 12 and that will give an opportunity for the friends who do not care to dance to call early and stay a long time or a short time, as they please.

Sons and daughters who do not live in the city will not be present, but those who do are to gather at the dinner and old friends are to call during the day. Mrs. Schmetzer has lived in Fort Wayne about sixty years and his acquaintance is a wide one and his friends are numerous. Mr. Schmetzer held the office of county treasurer and he was also a township trustee at one time. His children are A. C. Schmetzer, superintendent at Bowsers; John C., Mrs. Henry Pfeiffer and Mrs. Thompson, of this city; Mrs. George Sattler of Lafayette; Mrs. T. J. Ohrt, of Niagara Falls; Mrs. William Broecker and Miss Anna Schmetzer, of Pittsburg.

Miss Helen Lose, of West DeWald street, who is studying the voice in New York city, has met with a signal success just now which is very promising for so young a student. For a month Miss Lose has been singing in the choir of Brick church, and just recently has been appointed assistant soprano by the organist and director, Clarence Dickinson. In the choir, which is always considered one of the very best in the metropolis, are Miss Agnes Kimball, Reed Miller and Frank Croxton, all of whom were heard in a concert in Fort Wayne under the auspices of the Apollo club. Mr. Dickinson told Miss Lose's teacher, Mr. Burritt, that his pupil has one of the loveliest soprano voices he has ever heard.

Dr. W. F. King to Give Address.

All parents of Jefferson school pupils and all parents of the city who are interested are invited to the Jefferson school next Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock to hear Dr. William F. King, of Indianapolis, give a talk on "School Sanitation." Dr. King has some advanced ideas concerning school buildings, the keeping of them clean to thus better promote the health of the child, and so on, and his lecture will doubtless be exceedingly interesting.

Morton—Cook.

A quiet wedding that took place on Thursday evening in Austin, a suburb of Chicago, was that of Miss Lucile Cook and Mr. Gaylord Morton, both of this city. The wedding was at the home of the bride's father. Mr. Morton is a bookkeeper at the Hamilton bank. Mr. and Mrs. Morton will be at home at the Portland after they return here.

MOTHERS' CLUB IS GRATEFUL.

Extends Thanks to All Who Lent Assistance During Convention.

With the repetition of the kindergarten play festival on Thursday in Shriners' hall, the work of the Fort Wayne Mothers' club in connection with the recent convention of the Indiana Branch of the Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher associations is completed. The club wishes to take this means of expressing its appreciation and sincere thanks to those who so kindly gave financial assistance and also to the following who by their help made the convention possible: The daily newspapers of the city, the Commercial club, the Baptist church officials and societies, the Boy Scouts, G. H. Trier, Wolf & Dessauer, Foster Furniture company, Rurode Dry Goods company, Perfection Biscuit company, Cusma T. David, Bursley & Co., Packard Piano company, Fox Brothers, H. C. Heisler, Lehman Shoe company, Reed Shoe company, Bowser's, Lehman Book company and all persons who loaned plants and flags for church decoration. And for the success of the play festival last Thursday the club is deeply grateful to Mizpah temple for use of the hall and assistance of members, to the Fort Wayne and Northern Indiana Traction company for donating light for moving pictures, and to owners of auto trucks for transportation of children from schools to the hall.

The music will be one of the beautiful things at the advent of Anna Pavlowa and her company this evening. This renowned Russian dancer and her company with the orchestra from New York are to give an entertainment superior to anything of the kind seen here. At the performance at the Majestic several years ago at which Mordkin and members of the imperial Russian ballet, appeared, the program was very beautiful but too short. Some people thought they had been "stung," because Mordkin danced only a few minutes. They didn't know it was his first appearance on the stage after an operation for appendicitis, neither did they know that the order to have the program short was delivered to the company at the hotel by Mordkin before they left for the theater. In the "Magic Flute" is danced tonight it should not be confounded with the opera of that name by Mozart. The music of this dance, which is one of the large things the company gives was written by Drigo and it is a pantomimic drama in one act arranged by Ivanhoff. If Mlle Pavlowa dances the "Butterfly" it will also be to Drigo's music. Other music that is used in some programs that will be familiar are Dvorak's "Danse de Pirate," Liszt's "Les Preludes," Schubert's "Moments Musicale." The dancing arranged for the familiar Liszt melody is said to be particularly entrancing. In New York at an evening performance Pavlowa danced a group of divertissements named on the program as "gavotte directoire." During the group Mlle. Pavlowa danced to music known in New York as "Nix, on the Glow Worm, Lena." At least that was what one wrier recognized it to be. If the famous Bacchanale dance is given here the audience will hear the music written for it by Glazounow.

WITH THE STUDY CLUBS

The Nos Temps club will meet on Monday afternoon with Mrs. John McKean, 1915 Dearborn street.

The Bay View Reading club will meet on Monday afternoon with Mrs. Willard Smith, 923 West DeWald street.

The Saturday club will meet on Monday afternoon with Mrs. John Moring. Mrs. Sale will review one of Henry Arthur Jones' comedies.

The Twentieth Century club will meet on Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Warriner. The paper of the day will concern co-operative housekeeping and the discussion will be general.

There will be a business meeting of the College club on Friday afternoon with Miss Minette Baum.

A meeting of the Woman's league was held this afternoon in the public library. The department of social hygiene, in charge of Dr. Carrie Banning, had the program in charge. Dr. Eric Crull gave a talk on sex hygiene as it was presented at the Buffalo national convention of Social Hygiene, and Miss Esther Fleming gave a comprehensive account of the convention. The league is holding its monthly meeting now in the Y. W. C. A. building.

At a meeting of the Equal Franchise league, held at the home of Miss Hamilton, of Clinton street, recently, it was decided by the members present that it is time to do something more definite than attend the meetings and talk suffrage at all opportune times. Or in other words, the club declared itself in favor of some things that do not require the right of franchise to bring about, such as having woman members of the school board, keeping the price of eggs down to a reasonable figure, looking to the enforcement of pure food laws, etc. A large attendance and an intensely interesting program characterized this meeting. The speakers were Miss Baum, who discussed the aptitude of women to invent and of their great success that in some instances had given a woman nation wide fame, and Miss Winch, the police matron, who talked about her work, its possibilities and the new avenues of interest to all womankind. It was proposed during the evening and approved generally, that after the holidays the league should hold a "suffrage tea."

WILL WED HUNTINGTON BRIDE ON WEDNESDAY.

Not only the prominence of the Morris family and the large acquaintance which is theirs but the many personal friends of Samuel L. Morris, jr., combine in creating interest in his approaching marriage on Wednesday of the coming week to Miss Helen Margaret Good, of Huntington. Miss Good is a daughter of Dr. and Mrs. C. H. Good, and partly by reason of her father's wide acquaintance in that city and in the country and partly because of her own uncommonly interesting individuality she has a large number of friends both among the acquaintances of her parents and her own. Miss Good was graduated from Glendale college, Glendale, O., and has devoted much of her time to the study of music, making the piano her specialty. In appearance Miss Good is very attractive and charming. The wedding of Miss Good and Mr. Morris, who is one of this city's young but able attorneys, will take place at the home of the bride, 351 East Franklin street, on Wednesday evening at 7:45 o'clock. The officiating clergyman will be Rev. Dr. W. F. Smith, pastor of the First M. E. church. The bride and groom will have but two attendants. Mr. Morris will have his cousin, Stephen Morris, jr., who has recently returned from Colorado, for best man and Miss Blanche Good will be her sister's bridesmaid. Another sister, Miss Lillian Good, who plays the violin beautifully; Mrs. W. W. Rogers, of Bluffton, pianist, and Miss Bernice Bippus, soprano, of Huntington, will furnish the wedding music. The wedding will be attended by many relatives and the young friends of the bride and groom. From away there will be the bride's favorite aunt, Mrs. J. M. Harper, of Wichita, Kan.; a college friend, Mrs. F. H. Hewitt, of Bramwell, W. Va. Mrs. Percy G. Olds, of St. Paul, Minn., a sister of the groom and her sons, Morris and Robert, are coming here on Monday and will accompany Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Morris, sr., Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Tucker, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Morris, Miss Mary Morris and John Morris, of this city, to the wedding. After the first of February the bride and groom will be at home to their friends at 1002 Wildwood avenue.

EGGLESS RECIPES FOR THESE EGGLESS DAYS.

While Eggs May Be High, Mrs. Housewife, You Can Get up Fine Meals Without Them, Says Caroline Coe.

By Caroline Coe.

These are the times that try women's business capacity to the utmost. Trying to keep up the food standard with all food stuff at almost prohibitive prices is "no cinch"—as most boys says.

The family has always had well-balanced rations and this must be kept up. So mother begins to study how she can keep up the standard without using the high priced egg.

Caroline Coe.

There are so many articles of food with prices within the reach of all that may be used as a breakfast dish. For the family who breakfast at different hours the pancake flours put in small packages are invaluable. Any of them are good. Try them all and give the family a change. Many of them require only the addition of water, but milk makes the cakes more delicate. There is this advantage—one can make just enough batter to serve one person at a time. Many of these may be used in waffles or muffins and with a "rasher" of bacon or link of sausage makes a breakfast for any man.

Corn meal mush, oatmeal or hominy sliced, rolled in flour and fried carefully in drippings, served with syrup or sugar, will make a variety and even the one in the family who likes eggs best will probably not miss them if you put a little thought into making nine eggless cakes and desserts.

* * *

Feather Cake.

Cream one cup of sugar with one tablespoon of butter. But until light and foamy. Add one-half cup of milk, one and one-half cups of flour sifted three times with one-half teaspoon of soda and one even tablespoon of cream of tartar. Beat all together. Flavor with lemon. Bake in muffin rings in two small layers and put together with chocolate filling.

* * *

Chocolate Filling.

Buy five cents worth of chocolate creams, put in a bowl and turn two tablespoonful of boiling water on them. Put bowl in top of teakettle until the mass is all melted; beat until creamy.

* * *

Cream Toast.

Cream toast is a most maligned article of food. Very few know how to prepare it. The cream or white sauce should be cooked at least thirty-five minutes in a double boiler.

To one cup of warm milk add a pinch of salt. Take one even tablespoon of cornstarch wet with one tablespoon of cold milk. Put into the warm milk. Stir until it is as thick as cream. Set back on range, allowing the water in boiler to boil slowly twenty-five minutes. Stir to avoid lumps. When ready to serve add one teaspoon of butter and send to the table to be put over slices of bread that have been toasted golden brown. Toast sandwiches. Any kind—a bit of meat, fish or cottage cheese.

* * *

Cheese Toast.

Toast bread only on one side. Put a layer of mashed potato on the untoasted side and dot with butter and a little parsley. Grate a little cheese over the potato. Return to oven until cheese is melted and potato is hot. Serve at once.

* * *

Cornstarch Pudding.

A simple cornstarch pudding can be made as follows: To one quart of milk, after cream has been taken, put in double boiler and mix five even tablespoons of cornstarch with four tablespoons of sugar. This may be put into the milk without blending. Add very slowly, stirring all the time. When it begins to thicken add one-half teaspoon of salt and either a piece of stick cinnamon or a strip of orange or lemon peel. This should cook—not rapidly—for half an hour. Stir often to avoid a skin forming on the top. Pour into molds that have been wet with cold water. Set aside to cool gradually. May be served with any fruit juice or cream.

* * *

Hard Times Cake.

Cream one cup of soft butter with one cupful dark brown sugar, two and one-half cups of flour. Sift again with one-half teaspoon of cream of tartar, and half teaspoon of soda. Add one cup of milk (either sweet or sour) to the sugar and shortening. Then put in the flour with a little nutmeg and one-half cup of sliced raisins. Bake in shallow square pans twenty-five minutes.

* * *

Pineapple Sauce.

Juice from one can of pineapple, one teaspoon of butter, one-half teaspoon cornstarch blended with water. Boil all together for twenty minutes.

* * *

Molasses Ginger Bread.

Two cupfuls of flour, measure after sifting; one cup of molasses; half cup of sour cream or milk, one teaspoon of soda, one of ginger, half teaspoon of salt, one generous tablespoon of shortening and one of cold water.

Put the molasses, milk, salt and ginger into bowl. Dissolve soda in water. Melt shortening and add soda water and shortening to mixture in bowl. Beat well. Add the flour and beat quickly. Pour into well greased pans and bake in quick oven twenty minutes. Serve hot.

* * *

Christmas Fruit Cake.

Put one pound of fat salt pork through the grinder. Pour over it one pint of boiling water in which has been dissolved one tablespoon of soda. Add three cups of brown sugar, one cup of molasses, one even teaspoon of nutmeg, one of cinnamon, one-half teaspoon of cloves. Add two pounds of seeded raisins that have been cut in, but not chopped, one pound of currants, one cup of almond meats put through grater, one-half cup of grated cocoanut, one-half pound of citron sliced thin and in long strips. Add to all of this eight cups of flour. Bake in deep pan with tube in center one hour in moderate oven.

* * *

Cornstarch Fritters.

Two cups of milk in double boiler, add one-half cup of sugar four even tablespoons of cornstarch blended with a little of the milk from the double boiler and a pinch of salt. Add to warm milk and boil until it will not drop from spoon. Set aside to become slightly cool. Add one-half cup of diced pineapple that has been thoroughly drained. Put into pan about two inches deep. Set away to become cold and firm. Cut in strips or squares. Dip into fritter batter. Drop in deep fat until golden brown and serve at once with pineapple sauce.

* * *

Dutch Loaf.

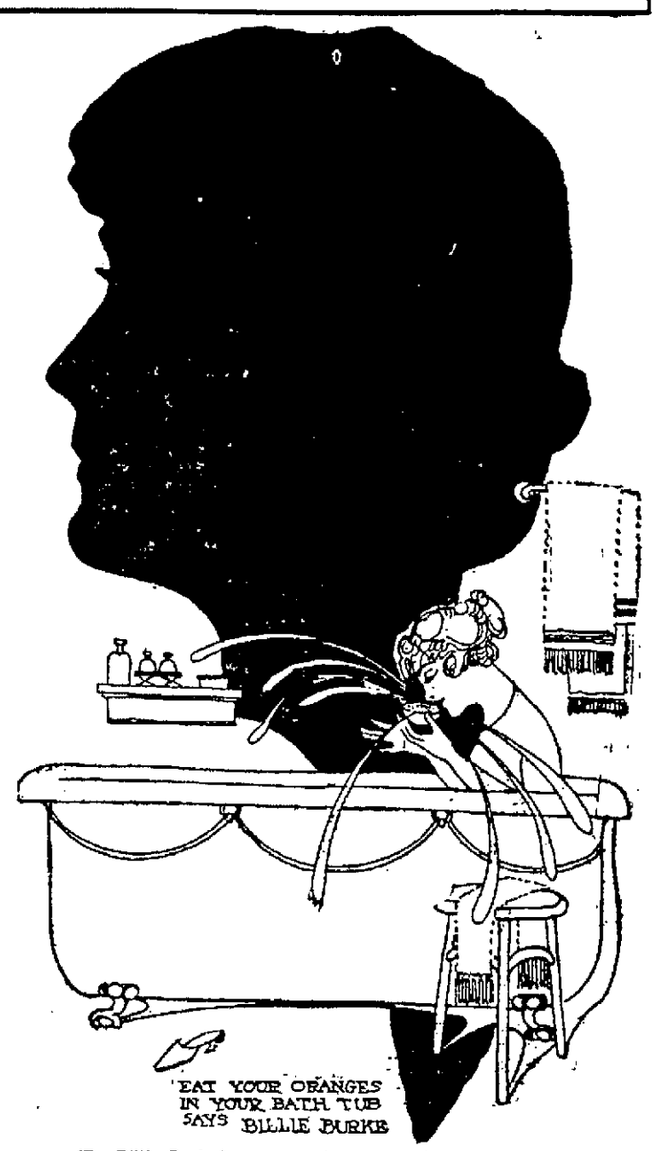
Use one cup of light bread dough, add one-half cup of sugar and one tablespoon of butter. Work all together until very smooth. Add half cup of raisins and any desired spice. Shape into loaves. Let raise to double the size. Bake forty-five minutes in moderate oven.

* * *

Hominy Crumpets.

These must be set over night. Beat well together two cups of milk, four tablespoonsful melted butter, four cups of flour and a scant cup of well boiled hominy. If the large hominy is used it should be chopped. Add salt to taste and put in warm place until half an hour before baking time; then stir in one-fourth teaspoonful of soda dissolved in hot water. Let them stand one-half hour, then bake very quickly in muffin rings or tins, or dropped by the spoonful on a greased baking pan.

EATING AND DRINKING SHOULD BE NOISELESS OPERATION, SAYS BILLIE BURKE.



(By Billie Burke.)

Most of us have heard Wilton Lackey's celebrated bon mot about going into a certain restaurant to hear the patrons eat soup.

One of the first things to remember is that eating or drinking at any time or place should be a noiseless operation.

Never allow your spoon to remain in a cup while drinking from it. Never blow on a spoonful of soup in order to reduce its temperature. When dipping up a spoonful of soup do it with an outward motion and sip it from the side of the spoon.

Foods eaten with a spoon are hot puddings, custards, grape fruit, cantaloupe, porridges, preserves and soft-boiled eggs.

If, however, one eats fruit or something which, like asparagus or artichokes, is eaten with the fingers, then a bowl filled with water in which a fragrant leaf or blossom floats may be placed at each place and you may dip the ends of your fingers in and lightly rub them across the mouth.

Only the ignorant and underbred bolt their food; scrape the bottom of the plate or cup in hungry pursuit of the last morsel; masticate with the mouth open; talk with food in the mouth; take large mouthfuls or smack the lips when chewing.

If by accident you spill something on the table, do not try to scrape it up with your knife or wipe the place with your napkin. Even if you overturn your glass profuse apologies are not in order.

Never bite off or cut a mouthful of bread, always break it in small pieces, and if butter is served butter each piece separately.

Crackers, celery, radishes olives, salted nuts, bonbons and all raw fruits (except melons, grape fruit and berries) are eaten with the fingers.

Never at table, however, bite into an apple, peach or pear; peel and quarter and then transfer the bits to the mouth with the fingers.

I have great sympathy with the woman who said oranges should be eaten in a bath tub. Unless you are eating in seclusion I would advise you to have the juice from your orange squeezed into a glass from which you may drink it.

The hostess is the first to make the motion to leave the table and she shows her graciousness by at least pretending to eat of each course as long as one of her guests is eating.

When leaving the table a gentleman always allows the lady to precede him.

Chosen to Head Fort Wayne's Oldest Lodge

WARREN V. SWEET.

At the ninetieth, annual meeting of Wayne lodge No. 25, F. & A. M., Warren V. Sweet was elected to the office of worshipful master. Wayne lodge is the city's oldest lodge organization. Other officers are:

Senior warden, Franklin H. Gaylord; junior warden, Frank W. Pifer; secretary, L. P. Sanders; treasurer, J. E. Beahler; senior deacon, C. C. Miller; junior deacon, A. P. Bitner; senior steward, Clarence Comincavish; junior steward, Christ Hessert.

Wayne lodge was granted a charter in 1823 and is the oldest Masonic organization in northern Indiana and the oldest lodge of its kind in the city. The report of the officers indicate the past year to have been one of the most prosperous in the history of the lodge. The members voted to donate the sum of $100 to the "Help Hope Hospital" building fund.

THEATRE

Pavlowa at Majestic Tonight; Other Notable Events Coming

Tonight—Anna Pavlowa and Symphony Orchestra.

Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Saturday Matinee—"Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm."

One Week, Starting Monday, Dec. 15—"The Garden of Allah."

THE GREAT PAVLOWA TONIGHT.

Some show is promised when Anna Pavlowa and her imposing troupe of imperial dancers, assisted by a full symphony orchestra, come to this city tonight.

All told, the company numbers an approximate century, which sets a new mark for an organization of this kind, if only from the standpoint of numbers.

Of the company's personnel, first and foremost, of course, comes Pavlowa, without a doubt the greatest dancer extant. Pavlowa has done more to rehabilitate the dance and make it the vital art it is today than any other executant, past or present. Throughout England and the continent her success has been unprecedented. The riotous scenes of unbridled enthusiasm which marked her appearances everywhere have never been duplicated, and the furore she created in this country three years ago is also without parallel. To see Pavlowa once is a privilege and a revelation, but to see this marvel of terpsichorean art a second time is to realize the emotions of a super-revelation.

Next in importance to the dominating figure of the famous Russian are three men dancers, Novikoff, Cecchetti and Zailich, each an artist of rare attainments and established reputation. Novikoff has been Pavlowa's leading associate for two years and critics call him the greatest danseur of the day. He is premier danseur classique of the Imperial opera house in Moscow, the highest title a man dancer can hold in Russia. Cecchetti is a premier mime of the Imperial opera house in St. Petersburg, and Zailich is premier danseur de caractere at Moscow. None of these has ever been in this country before.

The big company also includes Mlle. Stephania Plaskowieszka, who attracted notice on Pavlowa's previous American tour, and the following who rank high in Russia as solo danseuses: Mlles. Gorshkowa, Nevelskata, Butsova, Fredova, Kortnova, Laiegerova, Milovanowa, Zalmanova, Crommova, Lindowska and Hertska. Among the men who rank as solo danseurs are M. M. Romanowski, Markowski, Nitikin, Sohr, Monakoff and Kobelkel. The corps de ballet is of unusual size and beauty. Every member of it is a picked dancer from St. Petersburg or Moscow.

Pavlowa's repertoire is almost entirely new and in keeping with the pretentiousness of her company. A special feature will be the futuristic ballets "La Orientale," "The Seven Daughters of the Great King" and "The Preludes." The last named is a dance poem suggested to Franz Liszt by Lamartine's "Dedication," and in it the incomparable Russian is given full scope for displaying her wonderful mimetic powers. "The Preludes" achieved a most unusual success abroad, both as a ballet and a gorgeous production. Its scenery and costumes are the final word in futuristic decoration and have been designed by the celebrated Boris Anisfeld. He and Leon Bakst are the leading futurists of the day. In fact, almost all of Pavlowa's productions are the work of these celebrated artists and it is expected that they will startle America as they have startled Europe.

The orchestra, a complete symphony organization under the leadership of Theodore Stier, will be an important adjunct. Works of the most famous composers are interpreted in the dances of Pavlowa and her associates. These range from the florid qualities of Gluck, Mozart and Weber to the music of the most modern exponents of the realistic Russian school. Arensky, Rimsky-Korsakoff, Tschaikowsky, Glinka, Moussorgsky and others are represented. All of these features, together with the innumerable surprises that are promised, will make the Pavlowa show one to be remembered for a long time.

"Rebecca" in Klaw and Erlanger's Exquisite Production of "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm"—Majestic, Dec. 11, 12, 13.

"REBECCA OF SUNNYBROOK FARM."

During the year's run of "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," which comes to the majestic for three days, starting Thursday, at David Belasco's Republic theater in New York, Kate Douglas Wiggin, its gifted author, invited all of the New York clergymen to a special matinee performance of the comedy. The house was filled with the men of the cloth and their applause was as hearty and their enjoyment as thorough as the audiences of laymen which crowded the theater on other occasions. Many of the reverend spectators wrote Mrs. Wiggin afterwards testifying to the great pleasure the performance had given them. Rev. Herbert Shipman, rector of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, one of the spots pointed out to visitors in New York, said to her: "To be admitted from the outer autumn rain and sleet into the sunny atmosphere of Rebecca and Uncle Jerry and the rest, even though there was a shower on the stage and, at times, not a little moisture among us beyond the footlights—that was much. It was more—a good deal more—to turn one's back even for a little while, upon the autumn of impending middle age and to be led into the springtime again, and to feel again the 'magic of eternal youth.' I wish that we in our churches might command the power to reach down into people's hearts, as you do through Rebecca of the book and the play, and to open the springs which are still sweet and unspoiled and with still the possibility of a bubble and a ripple in them—even in the oldest and most worldly-wise and most orthodox of us all." Seat sale opens Monday.

"THE GARDEN OF ALLAH."

"The Garden of Allah," the most wonderful dramatic spectacle of modern times, is coming to the Majesic theater to play an engagement of a full week, beginning Monday, Dec. 15. The same production identically, and nearly the same cast of playeers, will be seen in Fort Wayne as were seen at the Century theater, New York. The Liebler company regard "The Garden of Allah" as too valuable a piece of property to cheapen in the least.

Realism is the keynote of "The Garden of Allah." It needs no effort of imagination at all to find oneself in Northern Africa, for the Arabs are real and talk Arabic; the Algerian Tirailleus are real and talk French, and even the aroma of the east is there. And the sandstorm in part three is so real that one can actually taste the gritty dust of the desert of Mogar as the wind howls through the dunes, flapping the striped tent and threatening to tear it down.

But not alone in local color is this production a thing to wonder at. It is all terribly real; the sweet English-Hungarian girl, Domni Enfilden, come to the desert in search of peace; the conscience-wracked monk, Boris Androvsky, fighting his great and grim battle between his soul and his body; the kindly old priest, Father Roubier; Count Anteoni, who thinks that he finds the truth in the Arab's Allah and discovers his error; the vivacious, quarrelsome crowd in the narrow street of the Ouled Nailes; the dancing girls; the sand diviner, Barouch—there is not one weak spot in this whole production. Taken all by themselves the scenic effects are little short of marvelous. This is the desert with its infinite heavens spangled with stars which pale and go out before the sun; it is actually a garden in which the love of two mighty souls rises triumphant.

Prominent in the cast of "The Garden of Allah" are Sarah Trumx, Lawson Butt, Frank Kingdon, John Blair, Antonio Salermo, William Jeffrey and Florence Lester.

The sale of seats will open on Wednesday next, and mail orders are being filled now from out-of-town patrons.

Pavlowa, Divinity of the Dance as the New York Sun Calls Her, as "The Butterfly"—Majestic Tonight.

Headliners Center at the Empress for the Coming Week

Another smashing bill for the coming week will be proof convincing that the best in vaudeville is none too good for Empress patrons. Headliners gathered from all of the great theatrical centers of the world help to contribute to the quality of the Sullivan & Considine bills and the new week's show will even surpass in goodness the big show of the week just ended. Made up of six acts and exclusive Kinemacolor pictures, the Empress surpasses in stupendousness the bills of any other popular priced theater in the country. The show coming to the Empress next week in all candor could be moved into any theater where dollar scale of prices rule and would give instant satisfaction. It is a wonderful show to see for ten, twenty and thirty cents.

Kara, the European juggler, a recent arrival in this country, will head the new show. Kara is returning to America after many years spent abroad, during which time he traversed the globe, appearing in every civilized country on the earth. He played his first American engagement last week at Weber & Fields' Forty-fourth street music hall in New York and comes direct to Fort Wayne to open engagement for the Sullivan & Considine tour. The term "juggler" is a much abused one in vaudeville, but this style of entertainment, to many so commonplace, becomes a real art when presented by Kara. He juggles everything and in that inimitable manner that has his audience gasping in astonishment. His consummate skill baffles description, and is an act that must be seen to be appreciated.

THE SHEPHERDESS,
Appearing in the Spectacle, "A Day in the Alps"—Empress Next Week.

An extra added feature will be the great scenic allegorical study called "A Day in the Alps." This act employs a cast of eight people and a carload of scenery is used. The beautiful stage setting, showing the snow-capped mountain peaks in the distance, and a fall of real running water, near which can be seen live sheep grazing in the valley. The sun rises through the moving clouds and day breaks. A guide of the mountain enters, accompanied by an adventurous young American, who has read of the wondrous beauty and innocence of a shepherdess, and he determines to win her. The guide explains that the girl is mortal only when there is no sin in the Alps. Should sin appear, she becomes a spirit and sinks into earth. The man sings and charms the shepherdess to him. He is about to seal his victory with a kiss when the old philosopher of the mountains appears and, frightened at evil, the girl disappears. The old man is kind, however, and testing the metal of the young man, finally relents.

"Everybody's Doing It" is the title of a novel and humorous playlet that is also to be a feature of the new bill. The scene is laid in a hotel room and the green-eyed monster has played havoc with the domestic bliss of a certain household. There are complications galore, which in the end are finally smoothed out to the satisfaction of all. It is a scream from first to last and the principal roles in the hands of Mrs. Lewis McCord and Tom Ripley are splendid.

A real Broadway comedienne, coming directly from the American Music hall in New York to the Empress, is Edith Clifford, whose Yiddish songs have made her one of the most sought after entertainers in vaudeville today. Her song numbers are all original and her gowns are all French importations.

An act for the young and old is Staine's Comedy circus. He has ponies and various other well trained animals, and, best of all, "Bessie," his unridable mule. This is growing to be a familiar figure in animal acts, but Staine's mule and riders will create more solid laughs than the rest of the others bunched together.

Mack and Atkinson, in original songs and patter, and the Kinemacolor pictures, showing fine views of the Panama canal, complete the big pre-holiday season bill. There will be souvenirs as usual on Monday and Thursday afternoons and a big wrestling bout will be the added feature on Friday night.

KARA,
European Juggler Coming to the Empress Theater Next Week.

Five Melody Maids and Harry Parker Use Five Pianos at Temple

The Five Melody Maids and Harry Parker, which headlines the bill at the Temple theater the first four days next week, is the most stupendous and unique musical act ever brought to this city. This is rather a bold statement, when the other many good acts that have been seen at the Temple are taken into consideration, but when it is explained that five pianos, four upright and one grand, are used by this act, it can readily be understood why this statement is made.

Just think of it. Five pianos on the stage at one time, with five comely young ladies playing them. Sometimes there is a piano duet, sometimes a quartette and at times all five pianos are played at the same time. It is truly wonderful when you think about it, and maybe some of the readers of this paper will not believe it, but that is exactly what happens. This is the act that you have read so much about in the New York papers. It is the act that was headlined at Hammerstein's theater in New York city for three solid months, and it is the act that played at Keith's Fifth avenue theater week before last, from whence it comes direct to this city.

So you see what an opportunity the people of Fort Wayne have been given by the Temple management. They are able this week to see an act that New York went wild over for three months, and at popular prices, a thing that the people of New York were forced to pay as high as one dollar to see. The young ladies are both comely and clever and wear gorgeous gowns, while, according to the New York press, Harry Parker is one of the best rag time players on the stage.

Another act that comes direct from the Keith circuit is Miss Emerin Campbell and Mr. Aubrey Yates, in Edmund Day's great one-act comedy, "200 Miles From Broadway." This sketch has been a headliner all over the big Keith time since its return early last spring from Europe. The Buffalo papers in speaking of it said that the act "is the greatest comedy sketch ever presented here by the cleverest artists."

Ollie Young and April, two clever people, will be seen in vaudeville's cleverest novelty. The act recently completed a tour of the Orpheum circuit, and plays here for four days, in order to break a jump to New York city, where it opens on the Keith circuit the first of the year.

Those well known fun-makers, Marsh and Tribble, will be seen in "The Troubles of Sambo and Dina." This is a mighty clever act that comes highly recommended and surely ought to please.

Rolano and Rolano, the singer and the harpist, is another high class act. The one has a lovely voice and the other plays the harp to perfection. This act will certainly be a hit with the music loving people of Fort Wayne.

Davis, "The Twentieth Century Idea," completes the bill.

Don't forget that on Monday souvenirs in the form of silver spoons will be given away. This also holds good for Thursday's matinee. Be wise and purchase your seats early so as to be sure to see this dandy show and get one of those beautiful silver spoons free of charge.

National Magnates Will Instruct New President at Meeting.

CONSIDER NEW PLAN

New York, Dec. 6.—Governor John Tener, of Pennsylvania, will be in New York next Tuesday at the meeting of the National league, when he is to be elected president to succeed Thomas Lynch. National league officers here stated that the governor had assured them he would be present.

In addition to the election of a president the magnates will cosider several other important matters behind closed doors.

The seventeen demands of the baseball players' fraternity will be received and considered officially, with President-elect Tener in the chair. Each demand will be voted on. The league will be asked to instruct President Tener how to vote as a member of the National baseball commission when the fraternities' demands come before the supreme court of baseball in January. The American league already has empowered President Ban Johnson to act while the minor leagues also will send a representative to the Cincinnati conference.

In passing on each of the fraternity's demands the National league magnates will be the first to discuss officially the status of the players. Another matter to be considered by the National league men is the new drafting system originated by President C. H. Ebbetts, of the Brooklyn club, which was suggested by him at Cincinnati in September.

The Ebbetts plan does away with the lottery system of securing minor league players whose services have been claimed by various clubs. It is a scheme calculated to benefit the weaker teams in both major leagues as the tail-enders, for instance, would have a first chance to select the best available playing talent without drawing lots, while the two pennant winners, already strongly equipped, would be compelled to take what was left after fourteen clubs had used the fine-comb.

BADGERS WON FROM SECONDS.

The Badgers won from the Bloomingdale second team by a score of 22 to 5. The line-up:

CLEVELAND WILL SEEK COURT AID

Reserve Clause Will Be Tested If Players Make a Jump.

READY FOR FIGHT

Cleveland, Dec. 6.—American league clubs may seek the aid of the courts in preventing any of its players who may desire to jump to the Federal league from playing with that organization. The American league never has sought judicial assistance in its affairs, but will do so next spring in the event of its reserved players attempting to play in the new organization.

The reason in this change of tactics is that the American league player contract reads differently from the contract formerly tendered to and signed by the players. It reads as follows:

"The compensation of the party of the second part (the player) stipulated in this contract shall be apportioned as follows. Seventy-five per cent. thereof for services rendered, and 25 per cent. thereof for and in consideration of the player's covenant to sanction sand abide by his reservation by the party of the first part for the season of 1914, unless released before its termination in accordance with the provisions of this contract."

In other words, when each American league player signed a year ago he gave an option on his services for 1914 for 25 per cent. of the sum he received. In case Sam Agnew, of the Browns, or any other player who signed such a contract seeks to play with the Federal league in 1914 the American league will resort to the courts in an endeavor to ascertain if that option can be ignored by the player.

MULLIN BECOMES A CLERK.

Famous Pitcher Takes Place in a Detroit Public Office.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 6.—George Mullin, the well known American league pitcher, and once the pride of the Detroit Tigers, is now an entry clerk in the office of County Treasurer Stein. He went to work this morning, but instead of a baseball or a bat Mullin used for weapons a common garden variety of penholder and lead pencil and his first duties consisted of the adding of a column of interminable figures.

"This is worse than pitching in front of 30,000 people" was all the comment George made as he buckled down to work again. Since he "jumped" the Montreal team in the International league the former Detroit pitcher has been playing some independent ball. County Treasurer Stein, who is an old-time ball player himself, received an application from Mullin some time ago but did not recognize the name at first. When his attention was called to it he soon found a place for the ex-Tiger.

FAMOUS BALTIMORE OUTFIELD OF 1894 WAS ONE OF THE GREATEST THAT EVER PLAYED IN NATIONAL GAME.

There have been so many splendid outfields in the national game that to pick one trio and nominate it the "greatest ever" is sure to start an argument.

It may be difficult for present day fans to visualize a trio better than Speaker, Hooper and Lewis, the Red Sox wonders of 1912; or Oldring, Walsh and Murphy, the Athletic fielders this year.

But fans, recalling stars of other days, will voice the opinion that there were outfields in the past able to throw dust in the eyes of the greatest of today.

In 1879 or 1880 Providence boasted an outfield composed of Jim O'Rourke, Paul Hines and Tom York. They hit collectively about .340, but were not high-class fielders.

Just as the Philadelphia infield has been praised this year, have Speaker, Lewis and Hooper been lauded to the skies, but are they the equal of Keeler, Kelley and Brodie, of the Orioles or Keeler, Fielder Jones and Sheckard, of Brooklyn?

Keeler was the cleverest man in baseball. In 1894, with Baltimore, he batted .367 and in 1900 he batted .366 for Brooklyn. This brings the superiority of either of these outfields down to four men. Brodie and Keeley, Jones and Sheckard, for Keeler was equally good with both teams.

Barring Keeler, Walter Brodie was the most uncanny judge of a fly ball that ever spoiled a base hit. He owned a fine arm and batted .369, compared to Sheckard's .305, but the latter offset the difference by working pitchers for bases on balls frequently.

Joe Kelley was a terrific hitter, batting close to .400 and often for extra bases. Opposed to him, Fielder Jones was one of the craftiest men in the game and, while nowhere near Kelley's equal as a batter, he narrowed the margin by his cunning. But first place must go to Kelly.

Had Davy Jones been a .300 batter, Detroit's 1909 outfield would have ranked with those of Baltimore and Brooklyn, but, despite the brilliance of Cobb and the slugging of Sam Crawford, Jones' failure as a reliable batter prevented the trio from becoming immortal.

No two men, not if they were both Cobbs, can overcome the weakness of a mediocre player because the ideal outfield must be a smooth-working machine, with every man capable of doing what the others are capable of, to maintain the balance.

THE GREATEST OUTFIELD THE GAME HAS KNOWN: AT BAT, "WEE WILLIE" KEELER; ABOVE THE BAT, JOE KELLEY, AND BELOW, WALTER BRODIE.

The Detroit outfield of 1887 was a marvel of batting strength, but not strong otherwise. Sam Thompson, Hardie Richardson and Ned Hanlon could slug—but that let them out. Not until Billy Hamilton, Hugh Duffy and Chic Stahl made Boston memorable in 1897 was the batting of the Detroit three lettered.

Clarke, Beaumont and Sebring, of Pittsburg, made up a wonderful outfield, hard hitting, fast fielding, although Sebring's inconsistency caused him to fall below the other two.

It was perfect balance that made the Oriole's trio the marvels of the game. They could hit like fiends; each man had a grand throwing arm; they were perfect judges of fly balls, and each one possessed in a remarkable degree that sixth sense, baseball brains. These were the things that made Keeler, Kelley and Brodie one of the greatest outfields that ever played the game called "baseball."

CRITIC PICKS A FOOT BALL TEAM

Star Aggregation Selected from the Ranks of Base Ball.

ALL COLLEGE PLAYERS

Chicago, Dec. 6.—An "All-American" football team composed of men who have achieved fame as professional baseball players has been selected by a local critic. Every man on the team played football and some of them were stars. Following is the list: Lord, Colby, right end; Birmingham, Cornell, right tackle; Johnson, Carlisle, right guard; Overall, California, center; Reulbach, Notre Dame, left guard; Hobilitzel, Marieta, left tackle; Brickley, Everett, left end; Huggins, Cincinnal, quarterback; Thorpe, Carlisle, right half back; Capron, Minnesota, left half back; Mathewson, Bucknell, full back.

Mathewson was considered a star on the gridiron and to him, Capron and Thorpe, all good players, would be given the tackling duties. The ends were selected as halves at schools, Lord having been considered the greatest in that position Colbey ever sent out. Brickley is on the Athletic payroll, and is a brother of Harvard's famous goal kicker. "Chief" Johnson, of the Reds, was a valued member of Coach Warner's squad a few years ago. Overall not only was a good center at California—one of the best on the Pacific coast when the old game was played—but also was an efficient backfield man.

Huggins' work at running back punts and in open field tackling made him a famous quarter at the University of Cincinnati. Birmingham was an active member of the Cornell team at one time, and Reulbach was an aggressive player for Notre Dame. Hobilitzel, who helped to coach the eleven at his Alma Mater this fall, was noted for his capacity for going through and tackling runners behind the line.

TOWN TURNS OUT FOR BIG SPREAD

East Aurora Welcomes Wally Schang and His Touring Car.

WAS MILKING COWS

(By Elbert Hubbard.)

When Wally Schang came back to East Aurora after pulling the pennant away from those greedy Goober Giants, he arrived under his own steam in an auto.

As the upper left hand pocket of his warm vest he carried a flimsy, crinkly piece of paper, penned by a proceedograph.

He sad the paper through the wicker window at the Roycroft Inns. Baten's shinners bulged when he saw it was a New York draft for $6,000.00.

The next thing Wally did was to hunt up the ancient village loan agent and pay on a little mortgage that has been decorating the Schang farm for twenty-three years.

And this was potentially squeege, for Wally as the East Aurora Buzzard expressed it, "first saw the light twenty-three years ago."

After Wally had got the teeth of that mortgage extracted, he bought at Hammond's emporium a black Sunday dress for his mother, a blue warm Dolith Mackinaw for each of his five sisters and three brothers and a suit of clothes for his father.

There are nine children in the Schang family and this is just as it should be.

The next day we gave a banquet for Wally at the Roycroft Inn. Two hundred and forty-two men sat down to the feast. There were no covers laid—We just put on the plates and the girls stampeded in with grub.

We agrarian sports came from up the creek and over the hills.

And then we had a few great men from Buffalo, so as to add a little bunting to the occasion.

There was much walloping of the wind, for East Aurora is some on the gabfest—well, I guess! Among our guests were Judge Hart and Hon. Jakie Stern, all ong league hot air twirlers.

Wally didn't make a speech. Why should he with a batting average that puts him in the hall of fame.

The night before the feed I called up Party J. 16, and Mrs. Schang answered.

"Is Wally there?" I asked.

"He is out helping his father milk the cows," was the answer.

A very level headed boy is Wally. No tobac, no booze, no pasteboard; no Gabby Jack palaver.

Wally is six feet scant, weighs 160. A handsome pink cheeked, bright eyed lad brought up to be useful.

Of course he used to make his sneak on Saturday afternoons and Sundays and play ball at the village.

Then he and his brother Bobbie used to pass the pill and knock flies often when they should have been pulling pussly for the pigs. It was a good deal of worry to the dear mother, the way those boys went daffy on baseball. But all is forgiven now.

"Bob and Walter—you remember, the book our middereens used to read to us when the kerosene lamp was lit in the other room, and the supper things done? Bob and Walter!

I slipped over to the Schang farm in my model T, and Bob and Walter were at it, knocking up flies. I took a hand of course, and showed 'em how we used to do it when Cap Anson was on earth the first time.

Bobbie Schang is just as good a player as Wally, or would be with a little tuning up. And Hughie Jennings thinks so, too.

MAY REJECT NEBRASKA.

Big Nine Representatives are Said to Be Opposed to Expansion.

Chicago, Dec. 6—Faculty representatives of the "big nine" met here today to take final action on the application of Nebraska for membership, to discuss the advisability of permitting intersectional basket ball contests and to talk over methods of cutting down football expenses. Nebraska applied for admission at the June meeting and the application was referred to the boards of control of the various conference universities. As four of the institutions are said to be opposed to expansion, indications were that Nebraska's application would be rejected. Representatives of Notre Dame and Marquette were ready to make formal application for admission. The advisability of cutting down the expenses of the football season by not taking hands and freshman squads on trips, was discussed at the meeting, but no action was taken. Some action on the question was expected at today's meeting.

STORMS DELAY THE TOURISTS.

Arrived in Japan Late Four Days and With Vessel Slightly Damaged.

Tokio, Dec. 6.—The Chicago team of the American baseball league and the New York National league team arrived four days late at Yokohama, the Empress of Japan having experienced terrific weather on her voyage across the Pacific. So little coal was left in the steamer's bunkers that it was feared at one time she would be forced to make for northern Japan. The captain, however, decided to continue to Yokohama, where the steamer came into port today slightly damaged. Consul General Thomas Sammons went out on board a tug to greet the members of the teams. Later in the day the players received an ovation on the grounds of Keio university, Tokio. President Eikichi Kamada pitched the first ball in the first match in Japan. This resulted as follows: Chicago, 9; 9; 0. New York, 4; 8; 2.

COLE TAKES RAP AT THE HEAVIES

Says Willard and Morris Put on Worst Bout He Ever Saw.

BOTH BADLY SCARED

(Ed Cole in the New York Evening Telegram.)

The Lay of the Limurger.
Out the window they must go,
They must go, they must go;
Out the window they must go,
Two big cheese cakes.

By Ed Cole.

The Evening Telegram is not responsible for this beautiful "pome." The credit goes to the occupants of the gallery and the side lines in Madison Square Garden during the "boxing bout" between Carl Morris and "Jess" Willard. The "gang" was not well pleased with the proceedings and in one accord they gave voice to the schoolboy jingle of "Out the window," with variations. It was well that something happened to enliven the monotony of the mauling match, for its was nothing more, and the little chorus probably saved the principals from more expressive criticism.

It was a sad, sad affair, and while Willard will probably be given the credit of winning, it should never go on record, for it is not worthy a line in the archives of pugilism. There has been some very cheesy pieces of pugilism pulled off in and around this little burg, but it is doubtful if ever there was one that was so unsatisfactory to the patrons of the sport as that of last night.

Turky trotting elephants could give as nimble an exhibition as did Morris and Willard. They certainly should not come under the head of pugilistic persons. And it was supposed to be a sort of elimination contest, too. They are both eliminated if they cannot show more ability than they did last night. Recognition as prospective champions is out of the question.

If dear old John L. Sullivan could have seen those two mastodons lumbering around the ring waiting for some one to land a knockout punch he would have stepped on the stage and furnished the material. They were both scared almost into collapse. Neither had confidence enough to strike a match for fear of being burned up. Two schoolboys would have been more daring.

But let us be charitable; they no doubt did the best they could under the conditions, for they probably had thoughts of the future. They both knew that defeat meant cold beef stew for the loser and they feared for the result. This made them too frightened to get near each other until the jeers and hoots of the crowd made them practically ashamed of themselves.

There were moments when cornered they condescended to do a few stunts, but they were all on suffrance. They had to mix things for their own protection. As for science, there was none. Aggressiveness, there was none. The bull-like rushing of Morris and the long-arm pokes of Willard, both of which were anticipated, were absent. What was done goes to the credit of Willard, but it was so trifling that to speak of it is painful.

Some one once shouted "Take 'em off." It inspired Willard for a moment and he chopped the "Oklahoma Giant" on the back of the head. 'Twas a mighty whack and the Giant floundered about for a moment, but he would not stand still long enough to give Willard time to get in another. Later on Willard stuffed a right to the cheek of Mr. Morris and thereupon a hump began to rise that had attained the proportions of half a cantaloupe in a few moments.

Between rounds Morris' seconds tried to soothe it down to normal proportions, but it would not down, and by the time the tenth round had ended there was a superfluous growth on his cheek that resembled a rose colored wen.

The comedy part of the act was when Morris stood in the middle of the ring and brushed his falling locks further on the back of his head. While undergoing this operation Willard looked at him in the most astonished manner, but never offered to interfere. A voice from the gallery suggested that Willard go and get him a comb and brush and a dash of tonic. "Bring a manicure set along too!" cried out a youth from the sky seats.

And so it went throughout the ten tiresome rounds of mauling and swinging, fumbling and fooling, fiddling and frittering until time was up. Morris and Willard were glad when it was over, but not more so than those who had to settle to be there.

MIRACULOUS CURES

The Few Months That the United Specialists Have Been in Fort Wayne Has Demonstrated Conclusively That Their Methods of Treatment Are Far in Advance of Those Usually Employed.

Hundreds of patients whom they have treated, have gone forth from their offices, strong, well and happy men and women—many of them who would otherwise have been doomed to a life of misery and suffering and in the gratitude of their hearts have given them testimonials of appreciation. Many of which have been published in these columns from time to time. As a sample, read the following from one of Fort Wayne's old-time citizens:

"Fort Wayne, Ind., Oct. 14, 1913.

"I have had a chronic trouble for the last forty years that physicians without numbers have tried to cure without any success. The United Specialists have treated me for a short time and I am proud to say I am completely cured. If you are afflicted with any chronic disease, I am sure that they will be able to do as much for you as they have done for me.

Respectfully,
"HENRY FRECH.
"754 Van Buren St."

Just call on them and they will gladly show you what marvelous results you can expect from the highly superior treatments they give. Examination is free and as it costs nothing to interview them, you cannot afford to prolong your misery by waiting longer.

Many men, who have sought relief elsewhere have been cured at their offices and at such an astonishingly low fee that they were indeed surprised.

They treat all chronic and nervous diseases, including goitre, rheumatism, all stomach and intestinal troubles, rectal diseases, prostatic enlargement, rupture, stricture, piles and fistula and special diseases of men and women.

Their institution is located at 124 E. Washington street, and their office hours are 9 to 12, 1 to 5; 7 to 8. Except on Sunday, 9 to 12 only. See them at once and get yourself on the road to health and happiness.

O'TOOLE WILL NOT JUMP.

Says He Will Report to the Pittsburg Texas Next Spring.

Pittsburg, Dec. 6.—There is no danger of Marty O'Toole failing to report to the Pittsburg Nationals next season. In a letter the sorrel-topped pitcher stated emphatically that the report published in the east concerning him was untrue.

"I have been informed several times lately," he writes, "that I had joined or agreed to join the Federal league. This was all news to me, for I never even gave the matter any thought."

O'Toole went on to say that he is anxious to return to the Pirates and that, accidents and sickness barred, he expects to have a good year in 1914.

"Since the season closed," he writes, "I have allowed the strain of baseball to relax, and have been taking in the college football games and basket ball games. Also I have been playing golf when the weather would permit. My companin most of the time has been 'Stuffy' McInnes, of the Athletics."

Marty insists that golf is a good thing ofr ball players, and says he has kept himself in prime condition by taking exercise on the links. He has received a couple of offers to coach college baseball teams, but hasn't decided wha he will do.

MAN WHO WILL BUY RED SOX STARTED IN LIFE AS DOOR BOY.

Boston, Dec. 6.—From door boy of a Boston hotel at $3 per week to half owner of the Boston American league baseball club is the story of the life of J. J. Lannin, who will in the course of a few days formally complete negotiations for the purchase of the 50 per cent of the stock in the Red Sox club now owned by the Taylors.

Lannin was born in Canada, came to this country when a boy and secured his first employment at the old Quincy house as door boy, where he served for three years before being promoted to a position as regular bell-boy. Two years after entering the employ of the hotel, becoming head bell-hop, leaving later to accept a position as hotel clerk elsewhere. He now owns three hotels, including one at Garden City.

At the annual meeting of the Red Sox club Lannin will be elected president, succeeding James R. McAleer, according to the announcement of John I. Taylor.

Lannin is perfectly satisfied with the present manager of the club, "Bill" Carrigan, and in an interview said: "In Carrigan I think we have one of the best managers in the country, and he will have every opportunity to make a grand record for the club next year."

Fort Wayne Ladies Make Great Progress in the Art of Basketry at the Y. W. C. A.

Among the useful, interesting and highly entertaining subjects taken up during the winter courses at the Young Women's Christian association home is basketry, which has enlisted some real enthusiasts and awakened a great amount of slumbering talent and started it in a channel that will eventually result in a display of some highly creditable productions.

Miss Dorothy Underhill has organized two classes and the students of the art have entered into the work with a spirit that promises not only to add some home-made baskets of highly ornate design and workmanship to the collections of the makers and their friends, but insures that a few teachers will graduate from the membership of the classes.

Basket making nights at the Y. W. C. A. building are eagerly anticipated by the scholars, as most of them find between lessons some difficulties they are not able to overcome and they are compelled to wait the coming of the teacher to extricate them from their tangles.

Regarded as a Fad.

While the art is generally regarded as a fad and is usually learned for the dual satisfaction of having employment that is clean, pleasant and entertaining for hours that would otherwise be filled with illness and of securing home decorations wrought by the hands of the members of the household, a great many women in Fort Wayne are taking it up with a view of eventually following it either as teachers or making it profitable by putting their work on the market.

Members of the association are eligible to the classes and many of them have availed themselves of the opportunity to learn, as the lessons combine enjoyable social hours with the study of making baskets.

The accompanying illustrations show some of the members of one of the classes at work, and also show the baskets in their various states, with an excellent collection of finished work, all of which has been turned out within the last few weeks.

There is a wide range for the beginner, as baskets from the size that goodly housewives usually carry to market to the delicate little affairs that are suspended from the walls and support vases for cut flowers are all made by the students.

Material Comes From Africa.

The reed or rattan used in making baskets comes originally from Africa, but is prepared in Germany and then sent to the United States for distribution. A lot of it is made up in this country by machinery and the work done so cheaply that the hand-made product can not expect to compete with it.

Aside from the wide range it affords the industry presents an additional attraction in the fact that it can be taken up and laid aside at will, for it makes not one particle of difference how dry and unwieldly the reeds may become, they can always be placed in water and made just as pliable as they were when they were first submerged.

At the Y. W. C. A. big dishpans are utilized for soaking the material in preparing it for work and each of the tables in the basement rooms set aside for the work is provided with one for the quartet of students that usually gathers around it.

The reed is simply rattan with the dry husk removed and is usually found on sale in the larger cities in the school supply houses for the reason that the work is taught in the schools and the material for the students is generally regarded as part and parcel of the stock of the supply dealers.

What Can Be Turned Out.

If you have any inventive genius at all there is an unlimited field open to you in the matter of design. For instance, you want to go to the public market for eggs and a few other luxuries too expensive to be chucked in with the other marketing, you can make a basket large enough to not only accommodate these costly articles, but you can excite the real admiration of your friends.

Then you want to entertain a party of friends at a luncheon or a tea or any of the hundred and one social affairs that draw your friends about you and you have favors to distribute, nothing would give greater pleasure than to have them admire the little basket in which you pass them to your guests, and few things will give you more satisfaction than to acknowledge it is one of your creations.

Baskets for your muffins, baskets for your sandwiches, baskets for your embroidery and for your mending, and baskets that are useful no matter where you put them, are made possible under the work that is being taught in Fort Wayne, and that is constantly growing more popular.

Comes in Bundles.

The reed for making the baskets usually comes in pound bundles that look like skeins of yarn and are so small that they can be very conveniently carried to and from your home to the school room. The reeds vary in length from ten to fifteen feet and there are fifteen sizes.

The fact that the material costs from forty-five to eighty-five cents a pound, according to size, and that one pound will usually make from three to six baskets each large enough for some practical purpose makes the work inexpensive.

Just at this time most of the students are engaged in making ornamental baskets that they can present to their friends at Christmas time. This opens according to sizes, and that one pound Women who can employ their spare hours with inexpensive material and prepare Christmas presents of great value are giving some first aid to the family exchequer that is bound to make a showing in the annual rush to give away a lot of things that most of the donors can not afford.

Done at Summer Resorts.

Much of the knowledge that is being stored up this winter will find vent during the vacation hours next summer, when those who have learned to make baskets and have also learned the art of getting enough money ahead to spend a week or so at the lakes every year can demonstrate that the water has some other uses than fishing, boating and bathing.

It furnishes an ideal medium for soaking and softening the reeds and does away with the dampness that is generally spread over the floors and tables within the family circle.

Out in a boat rocked by the gentle waves basketmakers can find most enjoyable work in the summer season and a number of people are learning how with that one aim.

The First Lesson.

In one of the illustrations a number of the beginners are seen cutting the spokes for their baskets. These spokes are the larger reeds and they must be cut in lengths sufficient to reach across the bottom, up both sides of the basket and far enough beyond the finishing point to allow for the department of the work that binds the edges and makes the rim.

This finish is obtained by interlacing the spokes after the weaver has reached the height required for the basket she is making. When the reeds have been cut into proper lengths they must be soaked and it is better that they should be placed in the water immediately after they are cut, for the reason that more time is necessary for them to absorb the water than is required for the weavers or smaller reeds used in the lacing.

At the second table another step, or rather two or three steps are shown. The bottom of a basket with the spokes protruding is shown, while the weaver is busy on the bottom, preparing to shape it and turn her spokes upward to get the required size of the basket she has in mind.

Outside Toward the Worker.

It will be seen in this illustration that one general rule is being followed out, and this requires the weaver to hold the outside of the basket toward her, with the spokes extending outward or upward or downward as the occasion requires.

In the coarser work the spokes are limited to about three-quarters of an inch apart, while they are closer in the finer work and where they are smaller.

One of the greatest difficulties encountered by the beginner is that of preserving an even arrangement of the spokes not only in keeping them the same distance apart as the weaving proceeds, but in the corners of the ovals, and more discouragement is found in this one particular than in any of the many other branches of the work.

In another illustration the task of rounding out the work is shown. This is done ordinarily over a plate the size of which is, of course, governed by the size of basket that is under construction.

Weaving practically speaks its own little piece. Pick up most any kind of a basket and it will be seen that this department simply consists of weaving the smaller reeds in and out and around the spokes and the most difficult task is preserving the alignment.

The handles and the other details go along with the general construction and must be kept in view all the time. Every part of the work has its own technical name and every scholar masters this sooner or later.

All of the reeds are of the pale color when they are purchased and when they have been built into baskets another problem is presented—that of coloring. This is pleasant and offers another wide field of operation, as good taste in this end of the game is just as necessary as it is in the designing.

Browns—very dark browns—predominate in the colored work done here. Of course the reds, greens and yellows make fine and pleasing combinations and the natural color of the reed predominates, for substantial use nothing is better than the dark brown or the blacks.

WANT AUTOMATIC TRAIN STOPPER

Inter-State Commerce Committee and Railway Experts Investigating.

PENNSY SHOPS CLOSED ALL DAY

Will Resume Operations Monday With Slightly Reduced Force.

Washington, Dec. 6.—Inventors and promoters of devices to stop trains automatically in emergencies appeared today before the house interstate commerce committee, which is considering bills to require the installation of such devices, if successful ones can be found.

E. G. Buckland, vice president of the New Haven, offered to co-operate with the committee. His suggestion was based, he said, upon an extended investigation his road had made of such devices, following the Westport wreck. He said that in response to a $10,000 reward offered by his road, 3,500 offers of such devices were received. Of these 1,500 had been investigated, one installed and another will be installed next week. He invited the committee to inspect their operation.

WILL HAVE THREE EVENTS.

Nickel Plate Auxiliary, B. L. E., to Be Busy Next Week.

The members of Nickel Plate division, No. 513, Grand International Auxiliary to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, will be busy next week. Tuesday afternoon and evening they will have pedro parties and a dance at the hall at the corner of West Main and Cherry streets; Wednesday night they will give their third annual ball at Minuet hall, and Thursday afternoon they will hold their annual election. Great preparations are being made for the ball and the demand for the tickets indicate that it will be well patronized, not only by the auxiliary and brotherhood people, but by the friends outside who attended the former balls and know what to expect from the coming one. Particular attention is being given to the pedro feature of the entertainment. There will be six prizes, three for women and three for men, and they will be of a higher class than offered by the auxiliary at the previous annual events. The committee on arrangements is composed of Mrs. T. E. Short, chairman; Mrs. Charles Merritt, Mrs. M. J. Maroney, Mrs. Samuel T. Hooper and Mrs. Walter Granger.

PENNSY SHOPS CLOSED TODAY.

Just before the hour for quitting work last evening, messengers passed the word among the shopmen that they would not be needed today and the big works are as quiet as on Sunday. Monday they will resume operations, but what the working schedule will be the management has not made known. It is presumed that those who are to be dropped from the pay rolls will be notified Monday, but today nothing on that line could be learned. The reduction will not be as great, however, as it was in 1907.

WILL SUCCEED DOREN.

J. J. Doren, who came here to take the office of foreman of the Wabash freight house, will be succeeded as chief clerk in Supt. J. C. Sullivan's office, at Peru, by C. H. Terry, formerly agent of the Wabash at Blakesly, Ohio. Mr. Doren succeeded George A. Treece, who will be assigned to other duties.

SOLDIERS GOING EAST.

Troop L, Fifth United States cavalry, consisting of fifty-five men, under the command of Capt. E. A. Sturgis, en route from Fort Apache, Ari., to Fort Meyer, Va., passed through Fort Wayne yesterday over the Pennsylvania line.

ELKS TO WABASH.

The Wabash has arranged to put a special car on westbound train No. 5 Friday evening for the accommodation of the Fort Wayne Elks, who will go to Wabash on that night to attend a minstrel show there. The train leaves Fort Wayne a 5:16 p. m.

OUTPUT WAS SMALL.

The output of generally repaired engines from the Pennsylvania erecting shop during the week ending today was the same as last week—six. This is only about one-third of the number turned out of those shops during a busy season. The engines turned out during the week were Nos. 7329, 7367, 7368, 7460, 9090 and 9302.

HAS TYPHO-MALARIA.

The illness which has confined O. J. Baals, storekeeper at the Pennsylvania round house, at his home for a week or longer, has developed into typho-malaria. He is quite sick, though his condition is not regarded dangerous.

WILL RESUME WORK MONDAY.

The Bass Mitten and Glove Manufacturing plant, which had been closed two weeks for repairs, will resume operations in full Monday. The motors and machinery are now in good shape and the output is expected to be correspondingly large.

INDUSTRIAL NOTES.

The cement walks on Grand street, in front of the Wabash station, are finished, though not ripe enough to open to traffic.

Engineer M. G. Walker, of the Pennsylvania, is off duty on account of the death of Mrs. Walker's mother, Mrs. Tousley.

Chief Clerk C. A. Bahlinger, of the Pennsylvania erecting shop office, has gone to Cleveland to look after some private business.

J. M. Klingenberger, Edward Koehl and O. P. Snook, of the Pennsylvania erecting shop, have gone to Cleveland for a short visit.

John Lohman, William Wichern, R. Kayser and John M. Bahlinger, of the Pennsylvania shops, went to Chicago this morning to spend Sunday with friends.

The Wabash shops were in operation until noon today. It is understood that they will be operated upon a forty-five hour weekly schedule with the present force hereafter.

The collapse of the steel coal docks of the Wabash several weeks ago was not a complete loss of the structure. The greater portion of the material is being used in the erection of the new docks.

F. Carter fell from the running boards of an engine in the Pennsylvania erecting shop yesterday afternoon and sustained painful bruises. He was attended by Dr. D. R. Benninghoff and then sent to his home.

Supt. J. C. Sullivan, Division Freight Agent W. A. Hopkins and Weight Inspector George Layher, of the Wabash, were in the city yesterday on business for the company. Assistant Trainmaster A. F. King was here today.

The recent new train schedule on the Wabash involved the consolidation of trains 1 and 11 and 4 and 6, between Montpelier and Detroit, and Engineers John Curran and George Martin, who had charge of 1 and 4 over that territory, are now running those trains between Montpelier and Danville.

What will probably be the largest single insurance transaction in history is about to be put through by a Canadian concern. The policy to be written is for upwards of $100,000,000. The property being insured is valued at between $112,000,000 and $115,000,000 and belongs to the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. Five big insurance syndicates, among them the largest company in the British empire, are interested in the deal.

WANTS STATE TO REIMBURSE HER

Mrs. Jennie May Eaton, Acquitted of Murder Charge, Makes Demand.

Boston, Dec. 6.—Mrs. Jennie May Eaton, recently acquitted of the charge of having poisoned her husband, Rear Admiral Joseph Giles Eaton, has appealed to Gov. Foss to have the state reimburse her for the expense of her trial. In a letter to the governor Mrs. Eaton charges that the grand jury was not warranted in indicting her for murder.

Will This Crate Carry Eggs Safely by the Parcel Post?

Uncle Sam is busy testing out various carriers to see if he can find one which will convey eggs safely from the farmer to the consumer and thus end forever "egg corners." Here is a container patented by C. J. Voorhorst, of Portland, Ore. It is so compact that fifty dozen eggs occupy no more space than thirty dozen by the old method. Each egg has its own nest. The picture shows Voorhorst standing on a carrier filled with eggs. None of them are broken, so he may be said to have "proved his case."

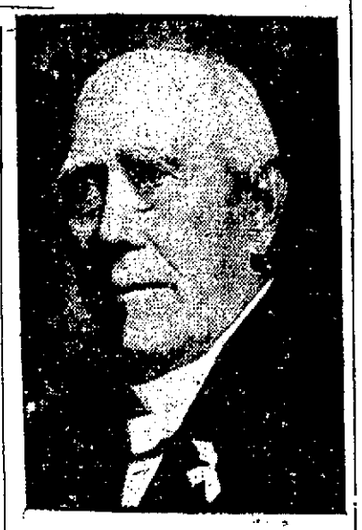
Preached 61 Years Without a Vacation

Rev. Aaron Worth, Widely Known in Fort Wayne, Has Unusually Active Career.



REV. AAORN WORTH,
Preached Sixty-One Years Without a Day's Vacation.

Rev. Aaron Worth, Wesleyan Methodist clergyman, well known in Fort Wayne and throughout the entire state, was born in Randolph county, Indiana, April 9, 1836, and is now past the age of 77 years. He was converted the second Sunday night in August, 1858, and in the following October he commenced preaching the gospel and has continued in the ministry without a day's vacation for about sixty-one years.

He is perhaps the most widely known minister in the conference to which he belongs and one of the most gifted ministers in the denomination. His uncle, Daniel Worth, was one of the founders of the Wesleyan connection and a noted abolitionist, and his nephew, the subject of this article, drank in his teaching on the slavery question and took turns with his uncle and father as a "conductor" on the underground railroad, helping fugitives on their way to Canada.

He was a republican in politics until Blaine's campaign, when he became a political prohibitionist, voting for St. John in 1884 and has uniformly voted that ticket ever since.

Has Been Successful.

Mr. Worth has answered roll call at conference for sixty-one years with but one exception. He has traveled as an evangelist in his conference for a great many years and has had charge of the dedication services of three-fourths of the churches of his denomination in the state and never in a single instance has he failed to raise the money to free the church from debt. Mr. Worth stated to a reporter recently that during his long ministry in the Indiana conference that ninety-three ministers of his conference had answered the roll call on the other shore. With nearly all of them he had a close personal acquaintance and officiated at many of their funerals. He has conducted more funerals than any minister in his conference and also officiated at more marriages than any other clergyman.

Rev. Worth's ordination in the ministry took place at Milton, Wayne county, September 12, 1856, more than fifty-seven years ago, and an invitation was extended to him by the citizens of that town to come back and occupy the pulpits of the village. This he gladly consented to do, preaching in the Quaker church in the morning and at the Christian church in the afternoon. In the evening he occupied the pulpit at the Methodist church.

Entered Politics.

He was a candidate for governor of Indiana in 1892 and made a thorough canvass of the state, speaking twice a day for 110 days without a break of a single day.

Rev. Worth has engaged in evangelistic work in many states and is still preaching with as much ease and freedom as he did forty years ago.

His present home is at Fountain City, not far from the old underground railway depot which has become a noted historic shrine, more than 3,300 slaves having passed through it on their way to Canada during the rebelling. The Eliza, of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," it is said, was sheltered one night in this depot in her flight to Canada.

$3.50 Receipe Free. For Weak Men,

Send Name and Address Today---You Can Have It Free and Be Strong and Vigorous.

We have in our possession a prescription for nervous debility, lack of vigor, weakened manhood, failing memory and lame back, brought on by excesses, unnatural drains, or the follies of youth, that has cured so many worn and nervous men right in their own homes—without any aditional help or medicine—that we think every man who wishes to regain his manly power and virility, quickly and quietly, should have a copy. So we have determined to send a copy of the prescription free of charge, in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope to any man who will write for it.

This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of men and we are convinced it is the surest-acting combination for the cure of deficient manhood and vigor failure ever put together.

We think we owe it to your fellow man to send them a copy in confidence so that any man anywhere who is weak and discouraged with repeated failures may stop drugging himself with harmful patent medicines, secure what we believe is the quickest-acting restorative, upbuilding, SPOT-TOUCHING remedy ever devised, and so cure himself at home quietly and quickly. Just drop us a line like this: Interstate Remedy Co., 3686 Luck building, Detroit, Mich., and we will send you a copy of this splendid receipe in a plain ordinary envelope free of charge. A great many doctors would charge $3.00 to $5.00 for merely writing out a prescription like this—but we send it entirely free.

LIVE AND LET LIVE

If I had a farm I would farm it; if I owned a business block I would rent it out; if I wanted a crow bar I would go to a hardware store—not to a barber shop; if I desired a washing machine I would not go to a drug store (altho', at times, we've noted signs at some proclaiming the sale of hot soup and lunch); if I wanted toys I would go to a TOY STORE—to a man who makes a regular business of it—not to a millinery shop, nor a dry goods store, nor a shoe merchant, nor a clothing store, nor to a furniture emporium. This is an age when capitalists and monopoly, with self-interest and greed, are driving the little merchants out of business but I wish to announce that for the 20th consecutive holiday season I am showing the largest and best assortment of dolls and toys in the city and PRICES ARE RIGHT. No stairs to climb, no elevator to ascend to a third or fourth floor, everything right out on display on the first floor and price marked plainly. MEN

Cured to Stay Cured

By up-to-date methods, without pain, inconvenience or loss of time. Weakness or Lost Vitality, Blood Poison, Varicose Veins, Hydrocele, Kidney and Bladder Diseases, Piles, Fistula, Contracted Diseases and ailments of men.

For years I have treated MEN'S DISEASES ONLY. I can cure you if anyone can. Do not let money matters detain you. Come at once. COME TODAY.

Consultation and Examination Free

Weakness, Lost Vitality

My combined treatment for these troubles, so common among those who have become weak and worn out is remarkably good. No one believes how quickly it benefits until they have taken it. It overcomes weakness, nervousness, pain in back, lack of energy, ambition and strength—it's just the treatment I have found so effective in treating such cases. BE A MAN ONCE MORE.

Blood Poison, Old Sores, Lupus, Epithelial Growths

And all Skin diseases are permanently and forever cured by Dr. Moreland's Pacific Blood-Cell Remedies. They act directly on the Blood Cells, eliminate the poison and restore the internal organs to their normal conditions. I am particularly anxious to hear from men who have been treated by other physicians without receiving any beneficial results or a permanent cure.

Varicose Veins Cured

I cure this affliction without pain or detention from business. Soreness, swelling and congestion of the dilated veins vanish quickly. Losses are checked. A healthy circulation of blood is re-established, the atrophied parts are developed and the old-time feeling of warmth, vigor and vitality speedily returns. Avoid dangerous operations. I can give you the quickest, safest and surest cure known to medical science.

Contracted Diseases

IN CONTRACTED DISEASES my patients are thoroughly cured in less time than any other less thorough forms of treatment require in producing doubtful results. I don't use strong, painful, injurious injections that do great harm. My method cures without pain: gives immediate benefits and a lasting cure.

Kidney and Bladder Diseases Quickly Cured.

They are often caused by early excesses, alcoholic liquors and severe sickness, the usual symptoms being chilly and feverish spells, worn out feeling, puffiness under the eyes, drains, smarting, burning and swelling. My long study and extensive practice in treating Kidney diseases insures success in all cases not past the curative stage. I determine the condition by analysis of urine, and the many severe kidney troubles I have cured, after they had been given up by other doctors, give me great confidence in my method.

SAYS PARCEL POST IS THE SOLUTION

Wilson's New Chief of Markets Talks on the Egg Corner.

UNCLE SAM AT WORK

(By Frederick M. Kerby.)

Washington, Dec. 6.—"The egg-producer and the egg consumer can be brought together—and "egg corners" abolished forever. The high cost of eggs—and the cost of many other farm products, too—can be lowered by co-operation between farmer and the egg user in the city or town. The parcel post is the solution.

That is the way Charles J. Brand, agricultural department expert on marketing, and chief of President Wilson's newly created "division of markets," sizes up the egg situation.

CHAS. J. BRAND, CHIEF OF U. S. DIVISION OF MARKETS.

"The division of markets, in co-operation with the bureau of animal industry and the postoffice department, has been for more than a month quietly testing out the possibilities of parcel post in shipping eggs from the country to the town. It can be done, and it can be done successfully and at low cost," declared Brand. "The agricultural department poultry farm at Beltsville, Md., has been selling the eggs produced there in the course of the poultry experiments to the employes of the department at the market price. We have, in the past month, been using these eggs, simply to test the possibilities of more than a hundred different types of egg containers by sending them through the parcel post.

"Of course the tests have not been concluded, but at least six of the containers are standing mail trips satisfactorily. Out of the first twenty-five dozen that we shipped," continued Mr. Brand, "there were only five broken eggs and four were in one particular dozen; so that there were twenty-four dozen eggs shipped with only one broken."

"How about the expense for containers?" I asked.

"It is not at all necessary that the containers be expensive," he replied. "The less expensive types in several cases are proving to be as satisfactory as the others. But it is quite possible to use a container that is expensive without hurting the efficiency of the service. For instance, a number of the containers can be kept until they reach the parcel post limit—twenty pounds—and then returned to the farmer by parcel post. But no doubt the best type will be found to be the 'gift package' type that can be thrown away after being once used."

"Is the public taking much interest in these experiments?"

He swung around in his chair and pointed to three wire baskets piled with letters.

"We are simply being deluged with correspondence from all over the country from people who want to know how best to get in touch with the producing farmer and buy their eggs—and other farm produce—fresh and cheaply. As a matter of fact, we have to spend so much time answering letters that it is retarding us in writing the bulletin which we expect to issue some time within the course of the next month and which will give full information on the results of our experiment.

"But there is one thing that ought to be made clear, and that is that consumers ought to go to some trouble to get into personal touch with farmers in order that both may deal satisfactorily. It is worth while. Our people ought to learn to do as they do in Europe. In France, for instance, people go to the country to spend their summer vacation, and a part of their thought in going is to get into direct touch with the farmer and find out then and there the kind, quantity and quality of farm produce which they can get. They get to know the farmer and he gets to know them. They are then able to trust each other and depend on each other. Here our people are not matter-of-fact enough. They want to telephone for everything they need. People in other countries are willing to go to some trouble to get good and cheap food, and in consequence they get what they are after."

NOT BEYOND HELP AT 87.

KEYSTONE MAN IS BURNED.

Bluffton, Ind., Dec. 6.—Henry Adams, aged 76, a veteran of the civil war well known to Bluffton veterans, was painfully burned by lye water at his home at Keystone at supper time. Members of the family were cleaning an old coffee pot with a strong solution of lye. The pot was on the stove and Mr. Adams supposing that it contained coffee, poured out a cup of the mixture and put it to his lips. The lining of his mouth was terribly burned and he suffered great pain for a time. His condition was improved this morning and his physician indicated that he is out of danger. A report was circulated that he had no chance of recovery but it is without foundation.

HOW THE YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION COMPETES WITH SALOON

IMMIGRANTS ARRIVING AT DEARBORN STATION, CHICAGO, MET BY Y. M. C. A. OFFICIALS —MANY OF THEM DESTINED FOR INDIANA CITIES.

(By Marc N. Goodnow.)

"I am very satisfied with the lessons and the history of Lincoln is very interesting. Now I can read a little and write. It is difficult, but I want more lessons."

It was in the back room of a saloon frequented by foreign-born workingmen that the writer of the above letter acquired the education which enabled him to pen the appreciative communication addressed to his teacher, and the teacher was a secretary of the Young Men's Christian association.

This pupil is only one of scores who have attended or are attending English classes in rooms or small halls connected with or adjoining saloons frequented by recent immigrants from every country in Europe. Many of these classes are being conducted within hearing of a babel of tongues at the bar, often within sight of the big foaming schooners which distinguish the barrooms of the foreign colonies.

Robs Saloons of Much Evil.

It is a peculiar fact that the Young Men's Christian association has gone into the saloon and actually robbed it of much of its evil influence by educating its devotees away from it. So far as the association is concerned, it is a case of Mahomet going to the mountain. Suitable halls for night schools are sometimes not available and even when such places can be secured at a rental commensurate with the funds provided it is not an easy matter to get the desired material to attend.

The most natural rendezvous for many of the recent immigrants is the corner taproom. It is there, after the day's work, that they can meet old friends or make new acquaintances among their own nationality. To them it is a club which has no initiation fee and exacts no dues beyond the occasional nickel which goes to quench their thirst.

Gather in Back Rooms.

Many saloons in the foreign sections of cities with a large immigrant population have back rooms or side rooms where these groups gather to chat or enjoy a game of cards, and here the Y. M. C. A. immigration secretaries and English teachers find and organize the raw material which is molded into first-class American citizenship through instruction in reading and writing the English language, and hearing talks on civics, history, sanitation and personal hygiene.

It is a peculiar fact, also, that the great majority of saloonkeepers in the foreign settlements actually co-operate in this work and make no charge whatever for the rooms used. They even post placards in their windows telling of the classes and do many other things that help the work along. When a saloonkeeper refuses to allow one of his vacant rooms to be used for these purposes it is generally because the men who attend the classes do not patronize his bar as freely as he thinks they ought.

Hundreds in Indiana.

Hundreds of foreign-born men in Indiana are brought into contact with the Young Men's Christian association by this method and by being attracted to the buildings of the city association. A large number of the 1,800 students in the night schools of the associations of the state are of foreign extraction, determined to master the new language and work their way up into better jobs. At Indianapolis, South Bend and Evansville the immigrants are reached in large numbers by means of the shop meeting, which is generally held at noon and for only half an hour. During that time, however, those who attend are made to understand what the association is and what it can do for the "raw" immigrant, as he is called. At the Gary association building many foreign-born men are numbered in the educational class membership.

Some Interesting Figures.

Dr. Peter Roberts, immigration secretary for the international committee of the Y. M. C. A., has made an interesting survey of the foreign population, most of which has settled in the Calumet region (Lake county) and along the northern tier of cities, including South Bend and Fort Wayne. Of the 2,700,876 people in Indiana, 2,130,088, or 78.9 per cent., are of native birth, of native parentage; 350,551, or 13 per cent., are native born of foreign parentage; 159,322, or 5.9 per cent., are of foreign birth, and 60,915, or 2.2 per cent., are colored.

Now, while Indiana, broadly speaking, has one of the largest percentages of native-born people to be found among all the United States, the Calumet region and the northeastern cities of the state have a large percentage of foreign-born. In the Calumet region the percentage is 70 of foreign-born people; farther east in the state is is somewhat less.

It is because of this large percentage of foreign-born people that Dr. Roberts advocates every sort of work which the equipment and facilities of the Young Men's Christian association will allow it to do.

Owes Them Much.

"America owes these men everything, because for the most part they come here only at maturity, at the period of life when they are at the height of their physical strength, from the ages of 21 to 30, and are at once ready for industrial service without having cost this country one dollar in the way of education or other industrial preparation," he recently pointed out.

"To these men," he continued, "we must look for the 'hewers of wood and the drawers of water.' They are our present industrial necessity, and because of this the whole economic life of the country is very largely influenced. Among native Americans there is only 1 per cent. more males than females in the entire United States, while among the immigrant people there are three men to one woman of the same nationality. This means that marriages are not of sufficient frequency to insure home life of the right kind or to maintain a level of morality in keeping with our institutions and life."

At Gary and South Bend.

The city of Gary has the largest foreign population in the state, in proportion to its numerical size. Of the 40,000 people now in that city, more than 25,000 are of foreign birth or parentage. While conditions are not now what they were during the early "pioneer" days of that young city, there still remains much work to be done by the Young Men's Christian association presented to to the city by Judge E. H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel corporation. The association there is one of the most active in the state in its work among foreign men, but because of the great number of these people the work that it can do does not become easily apparent. The work of the association consists principally in conducting educational classes of every kind.

In South Bend a large work has been conducted by the association among the foreign people; some of it is educational and much of it is social. It is one of the methods of the association to bring foreign-born men together in groups of their own nationality for recreation or intellectual improvement. Their instruction often consists of lectures on citizenship or civics or American history. The association has published a booklet on civics for coming Americans expressly intended to induce and prepare men to become naturalized citizens.

Fired by Usefulness.

In relating itself to the recent immigrant the association has pointed out to college students and graduates a field of usefulness which is now rapidly being taken advantage of. A number of Indiana college men have engaged in this "volunteer industrial service" and are conducting classes in drafting, English, civics, mathematics, civil service, engineering and a dozen other subjects. Both Purdue and Indiana universities are making provision for a larger work within the next year.

More than 300,000 foreign-born men in America are brought into touch with the Young Men's Christian association work and influence in this manner. Several thousand of these men have come to Indiana to make their home in the industrial centers of the state. They are being given instruction on how to avoid diseases, how to care for children, how to avoid accidents and how to treat tuberculosis; the newly made voter is being taught the value of the vote, and the duties of mayors, governors, presidents; concerts and social evenings are being held so that these new Americans may get a glimpse into the best life of North America.

They are, in return, most appreciative, sometimes expressing their gratitude by kissing the lecturers' and the secretaries' hands for what they have been taught.

Established in Chicago.

Immigrants whose destinations are cities in Indiana, will, now that a federal protective bureau has been established in Chicago, be distrubuted from that city under the direction of government officials. Much of this work, however, will have to be carried on by the Young Men's Christian association of Chicago and Indiana because of the lack of funds which the bureau will have for its upkeep and operation. Besides, the efficient system of immigrant distribution already built up and perfected by the international association will continue because of its effectiveness and adaptability.

Abraham Bowers, formerly of Indiana and now immigration secretary for the Chicago Y. M. C. A., directs the distribution of those immigrants who have first been welcomed to American shores by association secretaries at the various ports of entry. Either they are directed to their city destinations or they are given what assistance most of them must have because of their lack of a language and are put on trains for other inland points.

The Indiana Immigrants.

Many of Indiana's immigrants first find their way to Chicago before finally filtering through the meshes of that city into the industrial centers of this state. These men and women are, for the most part, met at the dock in New York, Boston or Baltimore, wherever they land, and are offered the services of a competent interpreter, who is an employed secretary of the Young Men's Christian association. If they are in need of assistance of any kind, and a great many of them are, the secretary supplies them with whatever is required and sees them safely on board an immigrant train for the west.

Upon leaving the immigrant the secretary gives him a card introducing the bearer to the association secretary or worker at the immigrant's destination. That same day the port secretary notifies the secretary at the immigrant's destination that the latter is on the way. In the event the man is coming to any Indiana city, the state executive committee at Indianapolis is so notified. The state committee in turn notifies the secretary at the point where the immigrant expects to reside. In many instances the immigrant is met at the train. Many cases are known in which immigrants have been saved from brutal treatment and financial exploitation by expressmen, cabmen and train officials by the timely arrival of a Young Men's Christian association secretary.

This is the particular phase of the work of that organization which gives it its tremendous hold upon the foreigners with whom it comes in contact. A recent immigrant never forgets that service rendered at the port of entry or at his city destination—a service that is most needed at that time because the immigrant is alone, without friends, and well-nigh "speechless." He is a stranger in a strange land, without the slightest idea of the customs or manners of those about him.

The Volturno Survivors.

It was in such a condition as this that nineteen male survivors of the ill-fated Volturno passed through Northern Indiana on their way to Chicago recently. But they were hungry, only half-dressed and penniless. Their tickets had been supplied to St. Paul and Omaha, their destination, but they had not enough funds to purchase food on the way.

When they arrived in Chicago they were met by Secretary LaGuardia, who recognized their plight and immediately came to their rescue. Overcoats, vests and shoes were purchased for a number, food was given them for the rest of their long journey and they were provided with pocket money. This, of course, is only one of hundreds of instances in which the association has been a practical "first aid to the injured."

Many association secretaries relate experiences of the most touching nature in connection with their work with foreign-born men and women. Often on the street their hands have been unexpectedly seized and kissed—the natural expression of appreciation from a simple nature.

The gratitude is the more spontaneous, perhaps, because the association's services are rendered without the slightest thought of compensation. It is purely a "glad hand" service. And it is designed to follow the man up, so that eventually he is taught English and civics, is aided in finding a place to live and also in securing employment. Without a job there is slight incentive to learn English, the first step in the making of an American citizen.

COLUMBIA CITY NEWS.

Columbia City, Ind., Dec. 6.—Fifty pictures, valued at from $25 to $300, original paintings, are now on exhibit at the high school building. The exhibit is being well patronized and bids fair to net the schools a large profit.

Auditor Charles Kiser and Clerk Joseph Harrison will be absent from the Whitley county court house until next week, having gone to Chicago to attend the stock show at the Coliseum.

Township teachers' institutes were held Saturday at South Whitley and Larwill and County Superintendent Fleck attended the former.

Mrs. S. Meredith, of McDonald avenue, has received word that her brother, Stephen D. Hyatt, is dead at Merna, Neb., the death occurring last Friday and the funeral Sunday. Mr. Hyatt was unmarried and while a resident of this county, made his home at and near Larwill.

Mrs. Estella Makins, whose former home was at Columbia City, has filed suit in the Wabash courts for an absolute divorce from her husband, Elzia Makins, alleging that she married him last February and that she did not know that he was on a parole from the Jeffersonville reformatory and that he later violated the parole and was taken back last October, which time was the first she knew that he was a convict. She asks that her maiden name be restored to her.

The Baptist church continues to be crowded nightly with throngs of people who are anxious to hear Rev. C. A. Sigman, a great revivalist, deliver his sermons. On Friday night the evangelist spoke on the subject, "Heaven, Shall We Know Our Friends?" and the church was filled to the utmost capacity. Afternoon meetings are also being held to accommodate the school children.

Mrs. John Ginder entertained several of her South Whitley friends at her home Friday afternoon. A six course dinner was served and a program was followed.

The Clover Leaf club was entertained Thursday at the home of Mrs. Herschel Anspaugh, and twenty members were present, including a visitor, Mrs. Kate Salmon, from Fort Wayne. Games and contests formed the program for the day and a dainty luncheon was served afterward.

The members of the Masonic Temple association met Friday and elected the following officers for the next term: E. K. Strong and Hugo Logan, directors; Caldwell Tuttle, president; E. K. Strong, vice president; Hugo Logan, secretary; Walter F. McLallen, treasurer; Jacob A. Ruch, manager. S. J. Peabody and Charles E. Snyder complete the list of the board of directors.

The Indiana State grange meets Tuesday for three days at Madison, Ind., and those from this county who expect to attend are H. H. Lawrence, who is on the executive committee, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Leppo, of Laud, who are the delegates from this county.

The Masonic council met Thursday night at their rooms and elected officers for the following year. Those elected were H. Dewitt McLallen, thrice illustrious master; Lloyd T. Bailey, deputy illustrious master; Walpole Kelar, illustrious deputy collector of work; John Braud, treasurer; Ernest E. Breigel, recorder. After the election the body attended the Red Mill theater.

A new store will be started in Columbia City when Chapman and Baxter, of Montpelier, Ind., open their second hand store. Columbia City has not had a store of this kind for several years, and there will be a good opening for one. The new establishment will be situated in the second building of the Foust block, now occupied by Busch & Sons' soft drink parlor, that will be moved to some other room in the city.

The second horse of the team of Adam Lehman that was poisoned Tuesday, died Friday afternoon. Mr. Lehman carried no insurance on the horses and feels the loss keenly.

The Odd Fellows gave the work to Will Shriner and Merle Stickley Thursday evening, after which an oyster supper and smoker was enjoyed.

The members of the lodge of Pocahontas, an order in connection with the Red Men, held election Thursday night of officers to serve one year. Those chosen were Mrs. Cecil Inks, Pocahontas; Wenonah, Mrs. Cordle Stemen; prophetess, Ica Huff; Powhatan, Charles Plummer; keeper of records, Miss Marie Mannen; keeper of wampum, Mrs. Grace Entrekin; trustee, William Entrekin. The new officers will be installed on the first meeting night in January.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Brand entertained several friends at their home Thursday night, in honor of their first wedding anniversary. The evening was spent in playing card games and instrumental and vocal selections.

Jay Stuckman, local field manager for the Decatur Sugar Beet Factory, has arrived home from Decatur, where he attended a banquet accorded the various field managers of northern Indiana by the officers of the factory. The showing of Whitley county more than pleased the officers, according to Mr. Stuckman's statement, and will try to obtain more acreage for the raising of sugar beets.

The L. O. T. M. held an election of officers for the ensuing year and those elected were: Commander, Loretta Hull; lieutenant commander, Chlone Kenner; past commander, Anna Hallauer; record keeper, Anna Baker; finance auditor, Elizabeth Heacock; chaplain, Minnie Diffendarfer; lady at arms, Anna Williams; sergeant, Maude Garber; sentinel, Anna Cusick; picket, Phoebe Collar; installing officer, Dr. Alice Williams. The installation of the officers will occur Thursday evening, Jan. 8th.

Dr. I. E. Lawrence, who has been on a visit through various states for two months, arrived home Thursday.

Money Saved by Making Your Cough Syrup at Home

Takes But a Few Moments, and Stops a Hard Cough in a Hurry.

Cough medicines, as a rule, contain a large quantity of plain syrup. If you take one pint of granulated sugar, add ½ pint of warm water and stir about 2 minutes, you have as good syrup as money could buy.

If you will then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a pint bottle, and fill it up with the Sugar Syrup, you will have as much cough syrup as you could buy ready made for $2.50. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours. It keeps perfectly.

You will find it one of the best cough syrups you ever used—even in whooping cough. You can feel it take hold—usually conquers an ordinary cough in 24 hours. It is just laxative enough, has a good tonic effect, and the taste is pleasant.

It is a splendid remedy, too, for whooping cough, spasmodic croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most vaulable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in guaiacol and other healing pine elements. No other preparation will work in this formula.

This plan for making cough remedy with Pinex and Sugar Syrup is now used in more homes than any other cough remedy. The plan has often been imitated but never successfully.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

WAS NATIVE OF COUNTY.

Huntington, Ind., Dec. 6.—Mrs. Sarah Diffenbauch, 56 years old, is dead at her home on Front street, this city. She had been ill for nearly two months, suffering from stomach trouble. Mrs. Diffenbauch was born in Huntington county August 13, 1857, and had been a life-long resident of this county. She was united in marriage to Lewis Diffenbauch on December 11, 1873. Five sons and three daughters survive. The sons are John, Charles, Louis and Harry, who reside in Huntington, and George, who resides in Fort Wayne. The daughters are Mrs. Charles Cole, Mrs. William Beubler and Mrs. Arthur Beubler, all of this city. Three grandchildren survive. The deceased was a member of the German Lutheran church.

GUARDING AGAINST CROUP.

The best safeguard against croup is a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound in the house. P. H. Ginn, Middleton, Ga., writes: "My children are very susceptible to croup, easily catch cold. I give them Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and in every instance they get prompt relief and are soon cured. We keep it at home and prevent coup." Dreier Drug Co.—Adv.

The word milliner is a corruption of Milaner, from Milan, the city which once established the hat styles for the world.

GEORGETOWN, TEXAS. J. A. Kimbro says: "For several years past Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has been my household remedy for all coughs, colds, and lung troubles. It has given permanent relief in a number of cases of obstinate coughs and colds." Contains no opiates. Refuse substitutes. Dreier Drug Co.—Adv.

Our Saturday Short Story

"MA'AM?"

BY GOUVERNEUR MORRIS.

(Copyright by Chas. Scribner's Sons.)

In most affairs, except those which related to his matrimonial ventures, Marcus Antonius Saterlee was a patient man. On three occasions "an ardent temperament and the heart of a dove," as he himself had expressed it, had corralled a wife within his house. The first had been the love of his childhood; the wooing of the second had lasted but six weeks; that of the third but three. He rejoiced in the fact that he had been a good husband to three good women. He lamented that all were dead. Now and then he squirmed his bull head around on his bull body,and glanced across the aisle at the showy woman who was daintily picking a chicken wing. Each time he looked he muttered:

"Flighty. Too slight. Stuck on herself. Pinhead," etc.

With his food Saterlee was not patient. He dispensed with mastication. Neither was he patien. of other people's matrimonial ventures. And, in particular, that contemplated and threatened by his son and heir was moving across 300 miles of inundated country as fast as a train could carry him. His son had written:

"Dearest Dad: Ive's found Dorothy again. She's at Carcasonne. They thought her lungs were bad, but they aren't. We're going to be married a week from today—nex Friday—at 9 a. m. This marriage is going to take place, Daddy dear. You can't prevent it. I write this so's to be on the square. I'm inviting you to the wedding. I'll be hurt if you don't show up. What if Dorothy's mother is an actress and has been divorced twice? You've been a marrying man yourself, Dad. Dorothy is all darling from head to foot. But I love you, too, Daddy, and if you can't see it my way, why, God bless and keep you just the same. JIM."

I can't deny that Marcus Antonius Saterlee was touched by his son's epistle. But he was not moved out of reason.

"The girl's mother," he said to himself, "is a p inted, divorced jade." And he thought with pleasure of the faith, patience, and rectitude of the three gentle companions whom he had successively married and buried. "There was never any divorce in the Saterlee blood," he had prided himself. "Man or woman, we stick by our choice till he or she turns up his or her toes. Not till then do we think of anybody else But then we do, because it is not good to live alone, especially in a small community in Southern California."

He glanced once more at the showy lady across the aisle. She had finished her chicken wing, and was dipping her fingers in a finger bowl, thus displaying to sparkling advantage a number of handsome rings.

"My boy's girl's mother a painted actress," he muttered as he looked. "Not if I know it." And then he muttered: "You'd look like an actress if you was painted."

Though the words can not have been distinguished, the sounds were audible.

"Sir?" said the lady, stiffly but courteously.

"Nothing, ma'am," muttered Mark Anthony, much abashed. "I'm surprised to see so much water in this arid corner of the world, where I have often suffered for want of it. I must have been talking to myself to that effect."

The lady looked out of the window—not her's, but Saterlee's.

"It does look," she said, "as if the waters had divorced themselves from the bed of the ocean. I suppose," she continued, "we may attribute those constant and tedious delays to which we have been subjected all day to the premature melting of snow in the fastnesses of the Sierras?"

This phrase did not shock Saterlee. He was amazed by the power of memory which it proved. For three hours earlier he had read a close paraphrase of it in a copy of the Tomb City Picayune which he had bought at that city.

The train ran slower and slower.

"Do you think we shall ever get anywhere?" queried the lady.

"Not when we expect to, ma'am," said Saterlee.

The train gave a jolt. And then, very quietly, the dining car rolled over on its side down the embankment. There was a subdued smashing of china and glass. A clergyman at one of the rear tables quietly remarked. "Washout," and Saterlee, who had not forgotten the days when he had learned to fall from a bucking bronco, relaxed his great muscles and swore roundly and at great length. The car came to rest at the bottom of the embankment, less on its side than on its top. For a moment—or so it seemed—all was perfectly quiet. Then Saterlee saw the showy lady across the aisle descending upon him through the air.

"Thank you," she murmured, as her impact drove most of the breath out of Saterlee's bull body. "How strong you are!"

"When you are rested, ma'am," said he, with extreme punctiliousness, "I think we may leave the car by climbing over the sides of the seats on this side."

He preceded her over and over the sides of the seats, opened the car door, and helped her to the ground. And then, his heart of a parent having awakened to the situation, he forgot her and forsook her. He pulled a timetable from his pocket and consulted a milepost. It was forty miles to Carcasonne—and only two to Grub City—a lovely city of the plains.

"Grub City, hire buggy- drive to Carcasonne," he muttered, and he moved forward with great strides.

* * *

"Where you want to git?" asked the proprietor of the Great City cafe.

"Carcasonne," said Saterlee. "Not the junction the resort."

"Well," said the proprietor, "there's just one horse and just one trap in Grub City and they ain't for hire. We've no use for them," said the great man. "So they're for sale. Now what do you think they'd be worth to you?"

"Fifty dollars," he said, a one accustomed to business.

It was then that a panting female voice was raised behind him. "Sixty dollars!"

His showy acquaintance of the dining car had followed him along the ties as fast as she could and was just coming up.

"I thought you two was a trust," commented the proprietor's wife, who stood near. "But it seems you ain't even a community of interests."

"Seventy dollars," said Saterlee, quietly.

The lady advanced to his side, counting the change in her purse.

"Seventy-six dollars and eighty-five cents," she said.

"Eighty dollars," said Saterlee.

"Oh!" cried the lady, "seventy-six eighty-five is every cent I've got with me—and y u're no gentleman to bid higher."

"Eighty," repeated Saterlee.

"Eighty dollars," said the son-in-law, "for a horse and buggy that a man's never seen is too good to be true."

"They are yours, sir," said the father-in-law, and he turned to his daughter's husband. "Is that horse in your cellar or in mine?" he asked. "I ain't set eyes on her since February."

Saterlee turned quietly to the angry and tearful vision whom he had so callously outbid.

"Ma'am," he said, "if we come to my stop first or thereabouts, the buggy is yours to go on with. If we reach yours first, it's mine. Now, if you're going further than Carcasonne Junction, I'll get out there. And either I'll walk to the hotel or hire another trap."

"Why!" exclaimed the lady, "are you bound for Carcasonne House? So am I."

"In that case," said Saterlee, elegantly, "we'll go the whole hog together."

"Quite so," said the lady, primly.

"You'd ought to make Carcasonne House by midnight," said the proprietor.

"Heavens!" exclaimed the lady. "And if we don't make it by midnight?"

"We will by 1 or 2 o'clock."

The lady became very grave.

"Of course " said she, "it can't be helped. "But it would be ever so much nicer if we could get in before midnight."

"I take your point, ma'am," said Saterlee. "I can promise nothing. It's all up to the horse."

"Of course," said the lady, "it doesn't really matter. But," and she spoke a little bitterly, "several times in my life my actions and my motives have been open to misconstruction, and they have been misconstrued. I have suffered, sir, much."

"Well, ma'am," said Saterlee, "my reputation as a married man and a father of many children is mixed up in this, too. If we are in late—or out late, rather—and there's any talk—I guess I can quiet some of it. I rather guess I can."

The proprietor entered the conversation with an insinuating wedge of a voice.

"I don't like to mind other folks' business," he said, "but if the lady is fretting about bein' out all night with a total stranger. I feel it my dooty to remark that in Grub City there is a justice of the peace." He bowed and made a gesture which either indicated his whole person, or that smug and bulging portion of it to which the gesture was more directly applied.

Saterlee and the lady did not look at each other and laugh. They were plainly embarrassed.

* * *

Saterlee brought down the whip sharply upon the bony flank of the old horse. But not for a whole minute did the sensation caused by the whip appear to travel to the ancient mare's brain. Not till reaching a deep puddle did she seem suddenly aware of the fact that she had been whipped. Then, however, she rushed through the puddle, covering Saterlee and the lady with mud, and, having reached the other side, fell once more into a halting walk.

Once more the road ran under a shallow surface of water. And once more the old mare remembered that she had been whipped, and made a rush for it. Fresh mud was added to that which had already dried upon them by the dry miracle of the air.

"She'd ought to have been a motor boat," said Saterlee, the mud which had entered his mouth gritting unpleasantly between his teeth.

The mare rushed through another puddle.

The lady laughed. Please don't bother to hold her," she said; I don't mind—now."

"I guess your dress ain't really hurt," commented Saterlee. "I remember my old woman—Ann—had a brown silk that got a mud bath and came through all right."

"This is an old rag, anyway," said the showy lady, who was still showy, in spite of a wart-like knot of dried mud on the end of her nose. And she glanced at her spattered but graceful and expensive white linen and hand-embroidered dress.

"Well, I can see one thing," said Saterlee, "that you've made up your mind to go through this experience like a good sport. I wish I didn't have to take up so much room."

"Never mind," she said. "I like to think that I could go to sleep without danger of falling out."

"That's so—that's so," said Saterlee. "Maybe it's just as well we're something of a tight fit."

"What air this is," exclaimed the lady; "what delicious air. No wonder it cures people with lung trouble. Still, I'm glad mine are sound."

"I'm glad to hear you say that, ma'am," said Saterlee. "When you said you were bound for Carcasonne House I thought to myself, 'Mebbe she's got it,' and I felt mighty sorry."

"Do I look like a consumptive?" she asked.

"Bless me—no," said he. "But you're not stout, and, considering where you said you was going, you mustn't blame me for putting two and two together and getting the wrong answer."

"I don't blame you at all," she said, but a little stiffly. "It was perfectly natural. "No," she said, "my daughter is at Carcasonne House. She had a very heavy cold—and other troubles—and two doctors agreed that her lungs were threatened. Well, perhaps they were, I sent her to Carcasonne House on the doctors' recommendation. And it seems that she's just as sound as I am."

"What a relief to you, ma'am," said Saterlee, hastily.

"Yes," she said, but without enthusiasm; "a great relief. But"—she hesitated—you see—she has made up her mind to marry a young man whom I scarcely know. But about him and his antecedents I know this—that his father has buried three wives!"

The blood rushed into Saterlee's face and nearly strangled him. But the lady, who was leaning forward, elbows on knees and face between hands, did not perceive this convulsion of nature.

"If blood counts for anything," said she, "the son has perhaps the same brutish instincts. A nice prospect for my girl—to suffer—to die—and to be superseded. The man's second wife was in her grave but three weeks when he had taken a third. I am told he is a great, rough, bullying man. The son is a tremendous great fellow, too. Oh! blood will tell every time," she exclaimed. "M. A. Saterlee, the cattleman—do you know him?"

"Yep!" Saterlee managed, with an effort that would have moved a ton.

"I am going to appeal to her," said the lady. "I have been a good mother to her. I have suffered for her. And she must—she shall—listen to me."

PART II.

"If I can help in any way," said Saterlee, somewhat grimly, "you can count on me. Not," he said a little later, "that I'm in entire sympathy with your views, ma'am. Now, if you'd said this man Saterlee had divorced three wives."

The lady started. And in her turn suffered from a torrential rush of blood to the face. Saterlee perceived it through her spread fingers and was pleased.

"If you had said that this man," he went on, "had tired of his first wife and had divorced her, or been divorced by her, because his desire was to another woman, then I would go your antipathy for him, ma'am. But I understand he buried a wife, and took another, and so on. There is a difference. Because God Almighty himself says in one of his boks that man was not meant to live alone. Mebbe the more a man loved his dead wife the quicker he is driven to find a living woman he can love. But for people who can't cling together until death—and death alone part 'em—for such people, ma'am, I don't give a ding."

"And you a. wrong," said the lady, who was nettled by the applicability of his remarks to her own case. "Let us say a good woman marries a man, and that he dies—not the death—but dies to her. Tires of her, carries his love to another and all that. Isn't he as dead, even if she loved him, as if he had really died? He is dead to her—buried—men don't come back. Well, maybe the more she loved that man the quicker she is to get the service read over him—that's divorce—and find another whom she can trust and love. Suppose that happens to her twice. The cases would seem identical, sir, I think. Except that I could understand divorcing a man who had become intolerable to me; but I could never, never fancy myself marrying again—if my husband had died still loving me, still faithful to me."

"I take your point," said Saterlee. "I have never thought of it along those lines. But I may as well tell you, ma'am that I myself have buried more than one wife."

"If we are to be on an honest footing," said the lady, "I must tell you that I have divorced more than one husband, and yet when I size myself up, I do not seem to myself a lost woman. It's true that I act for my living—"

"I know," he interrupted. "you are Mrs. Kimbal. But I thought I knew more about you than I seem to. I'm Saterlee. And my business : Carcasonne House is the same as yours."

She was silent for a moment. And then:

"Well," she said, "here we are. And that's lucky in a way. We both seem to want the same thing—that is, to keep our children from marrying each other. We can talk the matter over and decide how to do it."

"We can talk it over anyway, as you say," said Saterlee. "But—" and he fished in his pocket and brought out his son's letter and gave it to her. She read it in the waning light.

"But," he repeated, gently, "that doesn't read like a letter that a brute of a son would write to a brute of a father; now, does it?"

She did not answer. But she opened her purse and took out a carefully and minutely folded sheet of note paper.

"That's my Dolly's letter to me," she said, "and it doesn't sound like—" her voice broke. He took the letter from her and read it.

"No, it doesn't." he said. And he said it roughly, because nothing brought rough speech out of the man so surely as tears—when they were in his own eyes.

"Well," said Mrs. Kimbal with a sigh, "let's talk."

"No," said Saterlee, "let's think."

They could hear from far ahead a sound as of roaring waters.

"That," said Saterlee dryly, "will be Gila river. Mebbe we'll have to think about getting across that first. It's a river now, by the sound of it, if it never was before."

"Fortunately it's not dark yet," said Mrs. Kimbal.

"The last time I had trouble with a river," said Saterlee, "was when my first wife died. That was the American river in flood. I had to cross it to get a doctor. We'd gone prospectin'- just the old woman and me—more for a lark than profit."

He broke off short. "And there's Gila river," he said.

"I hoped you were going to tell me what your poor wife said in her letter," said Mrs. Kimbal.

"Oh, ma'm," he said, hesitated, cleared his throat, and became confused.

"If you'd rather not—" said Mrs. Kimbal.

"It isn't that," he said. "It would seem like bragging"

"Surely not," she said.

Saterlee, with his eyes on the broad, brown flood which they were approaching, repeated like a lesson:

"'Mark—I'm dying. I want to do good, not harm. Jenny always thought the world of you. You'll be lonely when I'm gone. I don't want you to be lonely. You gave me peace on earth. And you can't be happy unless you've got a woman to pet and pamper. That's your nature—'"

He paused.

"That was all," he said, and wiped his forehead with the palm of his hand. "It just stopped there."

"I'm glad you told me," said Mrs. Kimbal gently.

When they came to where the road disappeared under the swift, unbroken brown of Gila river, the old horse paused.

"It all depends," said Saterlee, "how deep the water runs over the road, and whether we can keep to the road. Can you swim, ma'am."

Mrs. Kimbal admitted that, in clothes made to the purpose, and in very shallow water, she was not without proficiency.

"Would you rather we turned back?" he asked.

"I feel sure you'll get me over," said she.

For some moments Saterlee considered the river, knitting his brows to see better, for the light was failing by leaps and bounds. Then, in an embarrassed voice:

"I've got to do it," he said. "It's only right."

"What?" said Mrs. Kimbal.

"I feel sure," he said, "that under the circumstances you'll make every allowance, ma'am."

Without further hesitation—in fact, with almost desperate haste, as if wishing to dispose of a disagreeable duty—he ripped open the buttons of his waistcoat and removed it at the same time with his coat, as if the two had been but one garment.

"Please," she said "don't mind anything—on my account."

He reached desperately for his boots, unlaced them, and took them off.

"Why," exclaimed Mrs. Kimbal, "both your heels need darning!"

Saterlee had tied his boots together, and was fastening them around his neck by the remainder of the laces.

"I haven't anybody to do my darning now," he said. "My girls are all at school, except two that's married. So—" He finished his knot, took the reins in his left hand and the whip in his right.

At first the old mare would not budge. Saterlee brought down the whip upon her with a sound like that of a small cannon. She sighed and walked gingerly into the river.

The water rose slowly and they were half way across before it had reached the hubs of the wheels. But the mare appeared to be in deeper. She refused to advance, and once mor turned and stared with a kind of wistful rudeness. Then she saw the whip, before it fell, made a desperate plunge, and floundered forward into deep water—but without the buggy.

One rotten shaft had broken clean off, both rotten traces, and the reins, upon which hitherto there had been no warning pull, were jerked from Saterlee's loose fingers. The old mare reached the further shore presently, swimming and scrambling upon a descending diagonal, stalked sedately up the bank, and then stood still, only turning her head to look at the buggy stranded in mid-stream.

"Now," said he, "if you'll just tie my coat round your neck by the sleeves and then you'll have to let me carry you."

Mrs. Kimbal did as she was told. But the buggy, relieved at last of all weight, slid off sidewise with the current, turned turtle and was carried swiftly downstream. Saterlee, staggering, for the footing was uncertain, and holding Mrs. Kimball high in his arms, started for shore. The water rose above his waist, and kept rising. He halted, bracing himself against the current.

"Ma'am," he said in a discouraged voice, "it's no use. I've just got to let you get wet. We've got to swim to make it."

"All right," she said cheerfully.

She gave a little shivery gasp.

"It's not really cold," she said. "How strong the current pulls. Will you have to swim and tow me?"

"Yes," he said.

"Then wait," she said. "Don't let me be carried away."

He steadied her while she drew the hatpins from her hat and dropped it as carelessly on the water as if that had been her dressing-table. Then she took down her hair. It was in two great brown, shining braids. The ends disappeared in the water, listing downstream.

Shorn of her hat and her elaborate hair-dressing, the lady was no longer showy, and Saterlee, out of the tail of an admiring eye, began to see real beauties about her that had hitherto eluded him.

"It will be easier, won't it," she said, "if you have my hair to hold by? I think I can manage to keep on my back."

"May I, ma'am?" said Saterlee.

She laughed at his embarrassment, and half thrust the two great braids into the keeping of his strong left hand.

A moment later Saterlee could no longer keep his footing.

"Now, ma'am," he said, "just let yourself go."

And he swam to shallow water, not without great labor, towing Mrs. Kimbal by the hair. But here he picked her up in his arms, this time with no word spoken, and carried her ashore. Some moments passed.

"Well," she said, laughing, "aren't you going to put me down?"

"Oh," said he, terribly confused, "I forgot. I was just casting an eye around for that horse. She's gone."

"Never mind: we'll walk."

"It'll be heavy going, wet as you are," said he.

"I'll soon be dry in this air," she said.

Saterlee managed to pull his boots on over his wet socks, and Mrs. Kimbal, having given him his wet coat from her neck, stooped and wrung as much water as she could from her clothes.

It was now nearly dark, but they found the road and went on.

"What time is it?" she asked.

"My watch was in my vest," said Saterlee.

"How far to Carcasonne House?"

"'Bout thirty miles."

She did not speak again for some time.

"Well," said she, a little hardness in her voice, "you'll hardly be in time to steer your boy away from my girl."

"No," said he, "I won't. And you'll hardly be in time to steer your girl away from my boy."

"Oh," she said, "you misconceive me entirely, Mr. Saterlee. As far as I'm concerned, my only regret now is that I shan't be in time to dance at the wedding."

"Ma'am?" he said, and there was something husky in his voice.

About midnight they saw a light, and, forsaking what they believed in hopeful moments to be the road, they made for it across country.

The light proved to be a lantern upon the porch of a ramshackle shanty. An old man with immense horn-rimmed spectacles was reading by it out of a tattered magazine. When the couple came close, the old man looked up from his reading, and blessed his soul several times.

"It do beat the Dutch!" he exclaimed in whining nasal tones, "if here ain't two more."

"Two more what?" said Saterlee.

"It's the floods, I reckon," whined the old man. "There's three on the kitchen floor and there's two ladies in my bed. That's why I'm sittin' up. There wa'nt no bed for a man in his own house."

"But," said Saterlee, "you must find some place for this lady to rest. She is worn out with walking and hunger."

"Stop!" whined the old man, smiting his thigh, "if there ain't that there mattress in the loft! And I clean forgot, and told the boys that I hadn't nothin' better than a rug or two'n the kitchen floor."

"A mattress!" exclaimed Saterlee. "Splendid! I guess you can sleep some on anything near as good as a mattress. Can't you, ma'am?"

"Indeed I could!" she said. "But you have been through as much as I have—more. I won't take it."

The old man's whine interrupted.

"Ain't you two married?" he said.

"Nope," said Saterlee, shortly."

"Now, ain't that ridiculous?" meditated the old man. "I thought you was all along." His eyes brightened behind the spectacles. "It ain't for me to interfere in course," he said, "but hereabouts I'm a justice of the peace."

Neither spoke.

"I could rouse up the boys in the kitchen for witnesses," he insinuated.

Saterlee turned suddenly to Mrs. Kimbal, but his voice was very humble.

"Ma'am?" he suggested.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago Market.

Chicago, Dec. 6.—More settled harvest weather in Argentina made the wheat market today ease off. There were also beneficial rains in parts of India. The opening was a shade to ¼@⅝c lower, with a further subsequent decline.

Closing figures, nevertheless, were firm at the same a s last night to ¼c off.

Corn sagged on account of the slackness of speculative demand. Shorts in December were about the only buyers and their wants were soon satosfied. Prices started ⅛c down to ⅛@¼c up and then gradually went under last night's level all around.

The close was steady, ½@⅝c to ⅝@¾c under last night.

Oats showed weakness from the outset. Purchasers appeared reluctant to take hold before Monday.

Although provisions showed a little firmness owing to the run of hogs in the west being light, the market afterward gave way in sympathy with corn. Trade was meager.

Chicago Cash Grain.

Chicago, Dec. 6—Wheat—No. 2 red, 96½@97c; No. 3 red, 93@95c; No. 2 hard, 90@91c; No. 3 hard, 88@90c; No. 2 northern, 90@91c; No. 3 northern, 88@89c; No. 2 spring, 90@91c; No. 3 spring, 88@89c.

Corn—No. 2 yellow, 78@78½c; No. 3 white, 73¾@74c; No. 3 white, 72½c.

Oats—No. 2, 42½c; No. 3 white, 41¼@41½c; standard, 41½c.

Rye, No. 2, 64½c; barley, 53@78c; timothy, $4.00@5.25; clover, $14.50@15.25; pork, $21.25; lard, $10.65; ribs, $10.50@11.12½.

THE DAY ON WALL STREET.

New York, Dec. 6.—First price of the leading stocks today showed a narrow and irregular movement. The Harriman stocks were slightly higher, while Amalgamated and Steel eased off. Secondary transactions indicated an improving tendency. Canadian Pacific and Virginia-Carolina Chemical gained a point. Union Bag and Paper preferred advanced 2½, making a gain of over nine points in the last few days.

The market closed irregular. After an early advance and a subsequent reaction prices stood almost still to the end of today's half session. The forward movement was utilized for distribution of stock. Perceiving the source of this selling, traders helped along the reaction but professional offerings moderated when prices turned to about a parity with yesterday's close. Bear selling was based in part on the assumption that today's bank statement would be an unusually unfavorable one. Bonds were steady.

NEW YORK MONEY MARKET.

New York, Dec. 6.—Call money, nominal; no loans; time loans, firm; 60 days, 5½ per cent.; 90 days, 5¼@5½ per cent.; six months, 5 per cent.

THE WEATHER.

OFFICIAL FORECASTS.

For Fort Wayne and vicinity: Rain tonight; Sunday rain and colder.

For Indiana: Rain tonight; Sunday rain or snow and colder.

For Ohio: Rain tonight and Sunday; warmer tonight; colder in west portion Sunday.

For Lower Michigan: Snow or rain in north portion, rain in south portion tonight and Sunday.

For Lower Michigan: Snow or rain in north portion; rain in south portion tonight and Sunday.

SUMMARY OF WEATHER CONDITIONS

The southwestern storm is spreading slowly northeastward and is central over eastern Kansas this morning. It is giving rain this morning as far northeastward as Illinois and southern Indiana, and is being followed by clearing and colder weather over Texas, Oklahoma, and the middle Rocky mountain region. Rainfalls in excess of one inch have occurred since yesterday morning at North Platte, Omaha, Kansas City and Springfield, Mo., while at Denver about twelve inches of snow fell yesterday and last night.

Temperatures remain high throughout the central and eastern portions of the country, but the storm is being followed by colder weather. An extensive area of high pressure covers the extreme northwest this morning.

The southwestern storm will continue to spread northeastward and will give rain in this section tonight and Sunday. It will be followed by colder weather which will be felt in this section by Sunday afternoon or Sunday night.

W. S. PALMER, Local Forecaster.

MAY USE THE ARMORIES.

Housing of Unemployed Becoming Big Problem in Chicago.

Chicago, Dec. 6.—Armorie of the Illinois National Guard may be used for the housing of Chicago's unemployed, which is taxing severely the capacity of the municipal lodging house. A request for the use of the armories has been made to Gov. Dunne and Adjt. Gen. Frank S. Dickson.

"Something must be done immediately to relieve the crowded situation at the municipal lodging house," said Supt. Charles F. Rogers.

"The situation is worse than it has ever been before.

"We have accommodations for 175 men and more than six hundred apply here every night. They are given places to sleep on the floor. It has been necessary to turn away large numbers every night."

DROWN IN WATERWORKS TRENCH.

Three Deaths from Bursted Water Main at Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, Dec. 6.—One white and two negro laborers were drowned by the bursting of a sixty-inch water main at the bottom of a trench 24 feet deep at the Rockwood avenue crossing of the Pennsylvania railroad near Eastern avenue here today. The men were employed by a construction company which is building the Rookwood viaduct and were at work in the trench when the main broke and water engulfed them.

LANE IS SURELY BRIEF.

Washington, Dec. 6.—Senator Lane, of Oregon, apparently believes "that brevity is the soul of wit." When he turned in the copy for his autobiography to be printed in the new congressional directory he established a new record for using the fewest possible number of words. He wrote:

"Harry Lane, democrat, of Oregon. Term expires March 3, 1913."

The Fort Wayne and Northern Indiana Traction company is making rapid progress in the installation of the automatic block signals and by tonight the work on one division will be completed, according to company officials.

HIS COMPANIONS GOT HIM PICKLED

Rod Bixler, 19, Figures in Rowdy Riot for Which Three Are Fined.

NEWS OF THE POLICE

Rodney Bixler, aged 19, testified in the city court this morning that the souse he had when arrested along with Elsie Overly, Harry Overly and William Jacobs, was acquired by him as the guest of his older companions. Bixler's home is in Spencer, Ind., southeast of Indianapolis, and he is here as a guest of Elsie Overly, who is his cousin. The Overlys and Jacobs were also drunk and having a riotous time over some sort of a deal involving a horse and wagon and a big crowd had collected at the corner of Columbia and Clinton streets. Chief Abbott personally answered the call for the police and placed the quartet under arrest. Jacobs and Harry Overly resisted arrest and were roughly handled. In the police station Jacobs tore loose with a line of Billingsgate in the presence of his own sister that was shocking. Judge Mungovan gave him $5 and costs and the two Overlys $1 and costs. Young Bixler was turned loose with instructions to get work or get out.

Fined for Petit Larceny.

Joe Ertle was fined $5 and costs and given a suspended jail sentence of thirty days upon his plea of guilty to a charge of petit larceny. He had stolen a quantity of copper wire. His brother, Louis, held on a loitering charge, was released. Joe Ertle was shown leniency because he has a family to support and Judge Mungovan warned him to cut out his drinking and loafing and stick close to his work or the thirty days would have to be served.

Bill Hamilton in Sad.

William Hamilton got $1 and costs and two days in jail on a plea of guilty to petit larceny. He stole a blow-torch belonging to Frank Wilson, who has been boarding at the Hamilton home on Fourth street, and sold it. Hamilton said he meant in the first place merely to borrow the torch to do some work, but got stewed and disposed of the property. It developed he had fashioned a key to fit Wilson's toolbox, and also that his wife is suing him for divorce.

Other City Court Cases.

Arthur Dillion and William Dickey, drunks, were turned loose. Dickey had been locked up for several days to evaporate his booze and said today he "was feeling fine."

Earl McDay, charged with selling an article of food that was adulterated and misbranded, had a continuance until the 13th inst. The affidavit was sworn out by Dr. George W. Gillie, city meat and milk inspector.

Robert Trease, charged in an affidavit from the health department with maintaining a foul and undrained cellar, was warned to improve conditions and he agreed to do so.

MURDEROUS NEGRO ESCAPES.

The police today have gained no clue to the whereabouts of Archie Kavanaugh, a negro who badly carved his colored paramour, Carrie Brooks, after a quarrel in the house at 116 Murray street, about 9 o'clock last night. The woman is at St. Joseph hospital suffering from severe cuts in the arms and legs. After the attempt on the woman's life Kavanaugh ran from the place to the Wabash yards and is believed to have caught a freight train and started for his former home in Danville, Ill. Officer Erdman first learned of the affair by the crowd of negroes in front of the Murray street place. Captain Rundell sent Officers Immel, Galentine, Eisenhut, Buuck and Kavanaugh to the scene and they made a thorough search of the railroad yards, but got no trace of the fugitive negro. Kavanaugh and the Brooks woman came here from Chicago a week ago. The cutting was the result of a jealous quarrel.
